Mr. Charles F. Kettering of General Motors recently stated: "In the next half century we shall be dominated by the study of the science of man: his conquest of himself—his longer life, and his slow conquest of death."

This book written by an Englishwoman, definitely one of those rare beings Carlyle eulogized—an original thinker, plainly sets forth the manner by which that conquest can be readily attained.

Booksellers will make no mistake in stocking it.

FALL 1935

FICTION

Solomon, My Son!

By John Erskine

When critics say this novel is even "better than The Private Life of Helen of Troy" (Chicago Tribune) it means best-sellerdom in any language. And it's the kind of novel that will keep on selling because of word-of-mouth recommendations. $2.50

The Enchanted Spring

By Clive Arden

Virginia Kirkus recommends this novel as "original . . . good entertainment." A group of elderly Victorians, deserted by their young people, take a house in the country, and magically project themselves into their past youth. Enchantment with humor. $2.00

The Charlie Chan Omnibus

By Earl Derr Biggers

Includes three of Charlie Chan's most celebrated cases, The House without a Key, Behind That Curtain and Keeper of the Keys, masterpieces among American mystery novels. 1002 pages. $1.25

The Rose Petal Murders

By Charles G. Givens

Recommended to mystery fans as "probably the first newspaper murder story ever written in which the reporters do not outguess the police. A lively and entertaining yarn."—N. Y. Times. $2.00

Who Goes Home?

By Richard Curle

A novel of gripping suspense whose scene is laid in a modern English country estate. It creates, and sustains, through the superb characterization of a man of abnormal mentality, a fear of impending disaster. $2.00

The Demi-Widow

By Mary Pickford

We made two large printings before publication of this delightful romance by the author of Why Not Try God? A novel of Paris, the theatre and young love, it is a clean, charming and appealing story with a good plot and plenty of action. The author's name means unusually good rentals. $2.00

Summer Time Ends

By John Hargrave

We can say without equivocation, here is the modern masterpiece. A long novel of all classes of people, pitched to a modern racing pace, dealing with life, love, conception, birth, youth, age, death. It has humor, beauty, brilliance and a great originality, a work of art, that is bound to inspire imitators. Watch for it. 877 pages. $3.00

Hidden Ways

By Frederic F. Van de Water

An ace mystery and detective novel by a master mystifier, with an eccentric old lady and a young newspaperman employed in a part-time switchboard job, proving a grand combination of sleuths. $2.00

INCOME AND ECONOMIC PROGRESS

By Harold G. Moulton

Economic progress and the distribution of income —this volume draws together lines of analysis developed in the three underlying studies into a positive statement of national economic policy. It is designed to bring about a better distribution of the national income and hence a more rapid and steadily maintained rate of economic progress. It discloses the interaction of taxes, wages, profits, and prices, and the possibilities of limitations in the several methods of readjustment. The major emphasis is placed on the importance of price policy as a means of passing on the benefits of rising productivity to all the population.

AMERICA'S CAPACITY TO PRODUCE

Now in its 8th thousand

The charge that industry has been suffering from "excess plant capacity" is examined impartially and fairly. 608 pages, $3.50

AMERICA'S CAPACITY TO CONSUME

Now in its 7th thousand

This study shows how the flow of income is divided among the several income groups in society; the character of the consequent expenditures by families in the various income levels; and the bearing of income distribution upon its allocation between spending and saving. 272 pages, $3.00

THE FORMATION OF CAPITAL

Now in its 3rd thousand

This volume challenges traditional conceptions as to the forces which govern the growth of productive capacity; the dependence of capital expansion upon consumptive demand is demonstrated; and how "excessive savings" may produce financial disorder rather than new capital goods is disclosed. 207 pages, $2.50

"These books should prove a turning point in our national thinking."

THE NEW BOOKS:

The Romance of the Patchwork Quilt in America

by CARRIE A. HALL and ROSE G. KRETSINGER

There has been a constant demand for a truly comprehensive book about this subject. We believe this volume meets all qualifications—both as an important contribution to Americana and as a handbook for the woman who sews.

It is the only definitive book about that which many consider to be America's most distinctive contribution to the home arts. Handsomely bound, with over 700 clear reproductions of patches and complete quilts, it is a volume for both home and library. It gives not only the historical and social backgrounds of the craft, but easily understood instructions on how quilts can be made in any home. 299 pages, 178 illustrations, fully indexed. $5.00

JUST PUBLISHED

Harvest of the Wind

by SARAH LOUISA SWEENY

An exciting, romantic tale that may well take its place among such famous historical novels as THE CRISIS and LONG REMEMBER. The story deals with a family that came from mellow Kentucky to the gray prairies of "Bleeding" Kansas, and their courageous efforts to build a home during the strife-ridden years just preceding the Civil War. $2.50

COMING NOVEMBER 15

Songs from the Slums
By TOYOHIKO KAGAWA

The spirit of service and sacrifice that has made Kagawa an international figure is revealed in no other book, perhaps, as in these poems. They were written when he was an unknown and unrecognized young Christian convert, buried in the heart of Shinkawa, pest-hole of the Orient, trying to teach the law of love to the human derelicts and outcasts of his native Japan. Songs from the Slums, astounding word-pictures, are "living poetry, wrung from the heart of a son of the mystic East, pleading the cause of humanity's outcasts."
Many illustrations by Brazelton. A unique jacket in colors. Handsomely printed and bound. Ready, November 29. $1

THE BASIC BELIEFS OF JESUS. By Paul B. Kern. What did Jesus believe? Bishop Kern finds the answer not in any creed but in the Life behind the creed. A new appreciation of Jesus, what he said, what he did, and what he offers to our confused generation in the way of reality and leadership. Coming November 1. $2

A BOOK OF PRAYERS FOR YOUNG PEOPLE. By Richard K. Morton. 120 prayers to enrich the devotional life and Christian purpose of youth. Youth, their pastors and counselors will welcome this book for its helpfulness in youth leadership. Gift Binding. 75 cents

STORY SERMONS FOR BOYS AND GIRLS. By Charles Nicholas Thorp. No more interesting Bible-centered story-sermon preaching can be found than the 37 story sermons which Dr. Thorp gives in this book. From Noah to Paul the Bible personalities whom children love are used as ideals for character, thought, and deed. The application is to the present. $1

SERMONS ON OLD TESTAMENT HEROES. By Clarence E. Macartney. Biographical preaching at its best. With few omissions the major characters of the Old Testament are included in these 18 sermons. $1.50

THE ORIGIN OF RELIGION. By Samuel M. Zwemer. A fascinating study of the origin of religion containing a wealth of material hitherto available only in many books: Authoritative data on The High Gods; the religion of the Stone Age; creation-myths of the primitives; the origin of fire worship; the origin of prayer and sacrifice, marriage, primitive ethics, and belief in immortality. $2

A BOOK OF CHAPEL TALKS. By Elbert Russell. 62 chapel talks to Duke University students, distinguished by brevity, youth-appeal, and crystal-clear illustrations from life, literature, and the Scriptures. $1

SPECIAL DAY SERMONS: With Worship Outlines. By Ward and Leach. 19 full-length sermons of striking quality and appeal by Dr. J. W. G. Ward for the special days of the year; supplemented by worship outlines for orders of service for each special day by Dr. William H. Leach. $2

CREATIVE CHRISTIANITY. By Dean Shailer Mathews. Not since its inception has Christianity been called upon to face up to such acute problems of social adjustment. With many neat turns of thought and incisive observations Dean Mathews gives a practical, timely study in Christian economic philosophy. $1.50

COKESBURY PRESS NASHVILLE Order of Publishers or Your Jobbers

Size Comparable to the Large Unabridged Dictionaries

When scores of booksellers order 100 to 250 of a $17.50 book —that's news!

The belief of the editors of COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY PRESS that what America needed was a good one-volume encyclopedia is being justified in most dramatic fashion. At a time when even $2 looks like a large amount, orders are rolling in by the thousands for THE COLUMBIA ENCYCLOPEDIA at $17.50 (pre-publication price until October 17, $15.00).

Booksellers who are displaying specimen copies and sending out the advance order leaflet are piling up advance orders at the $15.00 pre-publication price. The opportunity to save $2.50 seems to be well-nigh irresistible.

A complete 12-page prospectus is now ready. Send for a copy. It is packed with information that will make it easier for you to sell the encyclopedia.

Remember, on October 17 the price goes up from $15.00 to $17.50. The larger the order you can place now, the bigger your profits will be.

THE COLUMBIA ENCYCLOPEDIA

IN ONE VOLUME

See 3-Column Ads in N. Y. Times and Herald Tribune Sept. 22

There you will find the names of over 300 booksellers who are selling THE COLUMBIA ENCYCLOPEDIA right now. The advertisement says, "Ask Your Bookseller" and gives the pre-publication price. It is the first gun in a tremendous advertising campaign that will help you sell the ENCYCLOPEDIA this Fall.

60 Centuries of SKIING

BY CHARLES M. DUDLEY

THIS is not only the complete story of skiing from 4000 B. C. to the present but it is also the first guide to the skiing centers of the world. It is superbly illustrated by lithographic offset in two colors. These skiing pictures range all the way from the first on the Old Runic Stone of 1050 A. D., found in Upsala, Sweden, to the Olympic Games of last winter, pictures from Austria, Canada, Finland, Germany, Italy, Scandinavia, Switzerland, and all corners of the United States. With an excellent exhibit of photographic art by experts in each country, and two hundred pages of text by an author who has skied extensively on both continents, it is no idle boast to say that this will be the major sporting book of the winter. Dec. 2, $3.00

We shall publish on Nov. 2, The Merry Out-of-Doors, a book of nature poems for children, by Lila Hurley, $1.50; and on Dec. 2, Tavern Tales of Old New Hampshire by Eva A. Speare, $2.00.

Here's what your customers will want to know about

Hands

A SAGA OF THE BUILDERS

The strongest novel by

CHARLES G. NORRIS

See next two pages ☞

You will sell many copies of HANDS. This is why:

The Theme

At the core of this powerful story about a dynasty of American builders and their women is the truth that man is happiest when he is working with his hands . . . building, creating, planting, designing, doing:

"Miles, my boy, this nation was founded by pioneers; was expanded by pioneers; developed by pioneers . . . Our early settlers, our Pilgrim fathers, our trappers and explorers and trail blazers! A nation of pioneers is a great nation . . . It's time for us to turn pioneering again. How? Oh, by acquiring a new concept of life, a new valuation of what is and is not essential to comfort, by creating new wealth. The resources of this country haven't been scratched . . . Work! That's our salvation. Toil! That will set us on the right road again. A lot of us poor benighted Americans have forgotten how to sweat. Your grandfather and your great-grandfather knew the value of the things they grew or made; they saw the direct result of their labor and had the satisfaction of using what they grew or made or of selling it for something a neighbor grew or made. We've got to go back to that! . . . I don't know how it is going to be done but you must create a social order where a man can earn his livelihood by the sweat of his brow or by the skill of his hands and can get all the work he wants to do whenever he wants it. Such a man has eliminated fear from his life and has achieved happiness. The fruits of labor.' It's a grand phrase. Man should never be deprived of them."

The Scene

The pulsing, pushing, thriving, growing America which raced ahead of itself in the years from 1880 to the present time is the panoramic setting for this moving drama of our industrial, economic and social past . . . It is Mr. Norris' strongest novel since Pig Iron and is packed with character, incident and atmosphere. Among other significant and exciting events that move through these pages are the Klondike gold rush, the Spanish-American War, The World's Fair, The San Francisco earthquake, The World War, The Stock Market crash . . . a swiftly-changing horizon which reveals America in the making.

The People

The characters through whose lives and loves the story is told are: The grandfather, a carpenter by trade, the sturdy progress of whose daily labor makes it possible for his son to go to high school and so take advantage of the glowing opportunities that came to the men of that time; the son, a great contractor who becomes a financier and accumulates a vast fortune; the grandson, who starts out to be an architect, is caught up in the whirlpool of 1929, finds opportunity crumbling about him and goes back to earning his living with his hands.

There are women in the lives of these men . . . many women . . . some who help them in their careers and others who do not. There is also passion, joy, terror, humor, incest, wealth, poverty, birth and death woven into the fabric of the story. It is a book which deals with the violent human problems as well as the quieter ones . . . a book alive and glowing with the tense vitality of real people.

The Author

Charles G. Norris, himself a meticulous builder of books, has here recreated in magnificent realistic detail the life of an entire people . . . a people whose daring, enterprise and self-reliance are matched only by its very good "horse sense". Not until now could Mr. Norris have written this novel. It is an unforgettable picture of the tumultuous era through which he himself has lived . . . and a prophetic glance into the future when men must again create for themselves that which they want to possess.

The Market

The appeal of this story is almost universal. The author has been able to do beautifully and right the life of the men and women, young and old, of the 1880's, of the 1900's, of the 1920's, of today. The story covers all phases of life and love and labor over a period of fifty years and helps us understand the profound experiences through which the American people have passed. Much more than a story about three generations of an American family, Hands is rather the story of the American people during the last half century.

☛ The sales possibilities of this book are unlimited. It's a novel that will stir every man, woman, boy and girl in America. We're not setting any sales quota. Instead we're preparing a promotion campaign that calls for a greater advertising expenditure than we have ever planned for a single book! Write or wire for posters, post-cards, special trade offers.

HOW TO SPEAK IN PUBLIC

By Grenville Kleiser

A new and revised edition of this standard manual. It contains a complete course of study by which the art of public speaking can be acquired without a master. $1.75

354-360 Fourth Avenue New York, N. Y.

"AAA"—Donald Gordon not only gives this novel his Triple-A mark as "ESSENTIAL" for sales—rentals—libraries but predicts "much review space and assured success." It's a fine and distinguished novel, dealing with the people of the South who've been portrayed all these years by Peterkin, Glasgow, Stark Young et al—but with what a difference! The sincerest, strongest talent among the younger novelists writes a long, leisurely story that is packed with dynamite!

THE HERITAGE

551 FIFTH AVENUE

IF YOU will look along the shelves in your shop, you will find many books there. It is earnestly to be hoped that no one of them has been there longer than you anticipated when you put it in stock! Of these books, many are new, fresh from the author's pen as well as from the printer's press. Many are new editions of books written by famous authors who have departed this life. But you will have to search long and hard to find among these books any which were made with an eye to permanence. In addition, you will search long and hard to find among all these books any which bear so elegant an appearance that your customers can use them for gifts.

Yet books are the best of gifts, at Commencement and during the happy wedding hour and at Christmastide and in celebrating somebody's anniversary; although it is obvious that the people who buy these gifts want the books to be surpassingly elegant in appearance, and will be more greatly satisfied if these books are well-made, with an eye to permanence. And that is why The Heritage Press now announces the publication of a list of just such books: the selected classics of the world's literatures, elegantly presented in beautiful editions. All of the books are illustrated, usually with pictures in full color, and by the foremost book illustrators in the world. All of the books are printed on especially made papers, chemically tested to assure a permanence of several centuries. All of the books are printed, in lovely and interesting types, at America's best book printing shops. All of the books are bound in genuine leather. All of the books are appropriate as gifts. And all of them are texts which do not yet exist in this kind of edition!

Longmans presents:

two exceptional novels, and a group of salable new books good for brisk Fall business

No longer a "dark horse" but a recognized favorite!

EVERY week more booksellers write to say what a grand (and salable) novel they think we have in THE WIND BLEW WEST. Ralph B. Henry of Carson, Pirie & Scott calls it, "The best story with a Texas setting I ever read." From Brentano's Gretchen Kroch writes, "I am vociferously enthusiastic about it. I have a feeling that it's going to be one of the biggest novels of the year."

From the Worcester Library Robert K. Shaw writes, ". . . have been glad to give it my cordial recommendation to the H. R. Huntting Co. for special binding in the interest of small libraries."

It's a splendid, beautifully written story of the days when the Iron Horse was pushing westward. To be promoted with plenty of advertising and publicity. Is your order in?

Certain to be a big seller, perhaps your biggest seller, because —

. . . it is the story of a period that most Americans remember and every American loves.

. . . it has the same "human touch", the understanding of the joys and sorrows of everyday people that brought such tremendous popularity to her short novel, Let the Hurricane Roar.

. . . it is a story of familiar people, of men and women, girls and boys that everybody has known; but it reveals the drama of their lives that often lay hidden behind leg-of-mutton sleeves and broad gold watchchains.

. . . it is as American in flavor as apple-pie, and as pleasant to devour.

. . . it is the kind of novel that the American reading public can absorb in unlimited quantities, and a strenuous campaign of advertising will lead them to it.

Read It. You'll Enjoy It.

When the Gibson Girl held hands at the magic lantern show

. . . when Sunday clothes were worn only on Sundays . . . when travelling men from the city had a wicked glamour . . . when boys became young men when they put on long trousers; and girls put up their hair and put on long skirts and became young ladies . . . those were exciting days for the girl who is the central figure of this fine American novel.

OLD HOME TOWN is a story just as attractive, just as full of incidents and as crowded with characters as its title suggests. The jacket (the same red tablecloth which is used as a background for these pages) expresses the novel perfectly. It is IDEAL FOR DISPLAY in your window and on your counters.

OLD HOME TOWN comes as close to being perfect reading for the great American public as any novel ever can. Stock it liberally. The more copies you have the more you will sell . . . and you won't want to be caught short. If you have not already done so send your order now. Display material on request.

SILAS CROCKETT

by MARY ELLEN CHASE

Author of "Mary Peters" etc.

THE sweeping success of her last book . . . (MARY PETERS is still in wide demand a year after publication!) . . . placed Miss Chase in the foremost rank of contemporary writers. In depth of understanding, literary craftsmanship and sheer genius in story development she is without a superior.

Every feature which so distinguished MARY PETERS is found in her newest work, SILAS CROCKETT, and in increased measure. A story of one hundred years of life on the Maine seacoast, it shows the changes in one family during four generations, from a captain in the Canton tea trade in 1830 to a packer of herring in 1930. Paralleling and interwoven with this main plot is a colorful, veracious study of the section itself and its people over the period of a full century. Written with exquisite taste and reticence, yet with compelling vividness, SILAS CROCKETT has the solid substance, the salty vigor, the literary perfection which America has come to expect from Mary Ellen Chase.

THINGS TO COME

by H. G. WELLS

THE Greatest Literary Figure of Our Times the man who forecast in vivid detail development of the airplane and military tank, direction- and range-finders and many other scientific marvels of today, has turned his genius to a fictionized presentation of the effects of the next hundred years on Mankind!

In a book as startling in content as it is new in literary form, Mr. Wells reveals to the reader what the New Civilization will mean to the average person, in living conditions, form of government, dress and customs.

Literally a new form of literature, THINGS TO COME is dramatic to the last degree—a thought-provoking picture is painted in a terse paragraph, a memory - haunting episode in a few sentences. Crammed with romance, philosophy, drama, it is unlike anything you have ever read!

RED SKY IN THE MORNING

by ROBERT P. TRISTRAM COFFIN

MR. COFFIN has the unique distinction of having achieved the highest recognition in the field of both biography and poetry. His PORTRAIT OF AN AMERICAN and LOST PARADISE in the one, and STRANGE HOLINESS in the other, received the unqualified praise of critic and reader.

Now he enters the fiction field with a novel which is tense and psychologically exciting from first page to last and, in addition, goes to the roots of human passions in its entirely uncommon plot.

RED SKY IN THE MORNING is a tale of human disintegration, as moving and terrible as the storm with which, in an unforgettable picture, Mr. Coffin opens the story The sharply etched New England background serves to set off most vividly the dark struggle that goes on within the closely guarded precincts of a recognizable American family.

VICTORIOUS TROY

by JOHN MASEFIELD

We have been waiting two years for a book which would justify the label, "Another BIRD OF DAWNING." At last it has come in this salty, gripping tale of the sea, based on an actual happening in the last days of the great sailing ships $2.50

WITHIN THE WALLS

by AGNES CARR VAUGHAN

Much has been written of Helen of Troy but until now Andromache, an equally romantic figure, has been ignored. Here we have her story, in modern treatment, plus a picture of life within the walls of Ilion during the siege. $2.50

ALL THINGS ARE POSSIBLE

by LEWIS BROWNE

Browne's THIS BELIEVING WORLD and STRANGER THAN FICTION fixed his preeminent place as historian and philosopher. This strangely gripping story of the crucifixion as it might have been experienced by Mary Magdalene will do the same for him in fiction. $2.50

A VISIT TO AMERICA

by A. G. MACDONELL

Those who chortled over ENGLAND, THEIR ENGLAND and chuckled with HOW LIKE AN ANGEL will welcome hilariously this witty, yet kindly, report of the author's recent tour of the United States. Macdonell found his greatest interest in the small details of American life. $2.00

IN SEARCH OF LOVE

by FRANCIS STUART

Candidly, this book is one you would least expect to come from the pen which wrote PIGEON IRISH and THINGS TO LIVE FOR. It is a mixture of rollicking farce, astute satire and penetrating character portrayal $2.00

THE VALLEY

by NATHAN ASCH

Another uncommon book, with its uncommon setting a valley in the Berkshire foothills. Asch describes, in a series of related sketches which comprise a brilliant anthology, the inhabitants and the romantic, tragic, bizarre crises in each of their lives $2.50

PIER 17

by WALTER HAVIGHURST

IN each of the past several seasons we have been able to present a novel which, in story appeal and literary merit, stood out boldly in its field. AS THE EARTH TURNS, MARY PETERS, TIME OUT OF MIND are examples. This year it is Oskison's powerful story of American life in Oklahoma, from pioneer times to this day.

More than an epitome of national development over a period of sixty years, it is a depiction of human values in a changing national economy.

"It is all American to the core. It has an epic quality; a strong, fine, brave tale."

ALBERT, KING OF BELGIUM DEFENDER OF RIGHT

by EMILE CAMMAERTS

A full and vivid life of the leader, who above all others, stirred American imagination throughout the World War. Written by a master of English, it includes many hitherto unpublished documents and other new material, much of it supplied by Queen Elisabeth.

For many years intimately associated with Belgian affairs, Cammaerts draws a faithful portrait of Albert as prince, statesman, general and man. He has carefully refrained from anything savoring of hero-worship. Beginning with a dramatic description of the war's outbreak, the story cuts back to Albert's early training as a preliminary to a candid portrayal of career and character . . . $5.00

STALIN: A NEW WORLD SEEN THROUGH ONE MAN

by HENRI BARBUSSE

This is a book long needed and awaited to fill a yawning gap in contemporary history.

Barbusse, one of the few, if not the only, non-Russian to enjoy close friendship with Stalin and other Russian leaders, was given access to records and documents which few Russians have ever seen. The result is a very serious and valuable summation of the case for Bolshevism from the Russian point of view, presented clearly, concisely and with complete sincerity—as well as an authoritative study of the Russian dictator, Stalin, his background, plans and policies $3.50

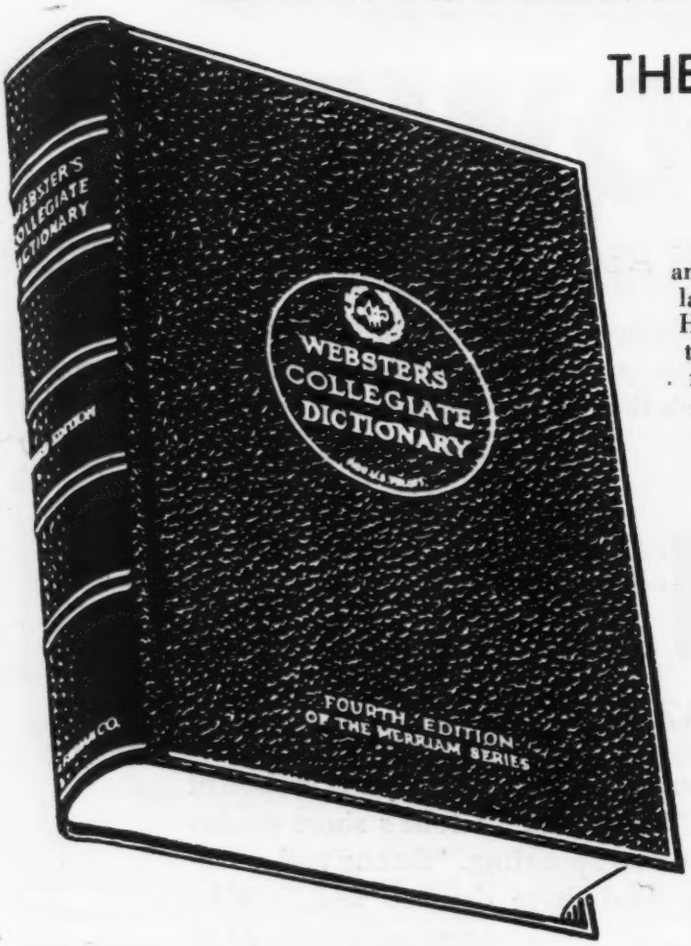
THE "BEST SELLERS"

Webster's Collegiate Dictionary



THE LARGEST OF THE MERRIAM-WEBSTER ABRIDGMENTS

and the best selling dictionary above the "dollar" class.

Here's the one popular priced reference book that's as fresh each year as any of the current "best sellers"! The demand for it is always lively—and stays lively after "best sellers" have dropped out of the public's interest.

Check your records! Prove it for yourself! Compare your year's sales of Webster's Collegiate with your sales of the year's crop of fiction and nonfiction leaders. You'll find the Collegiate up with the topnotchers.

And Webster's Collegiate spares you the worry and loss of "dead stock." It is always good, salable, full-price merchandise. It fills a universal need that fads or seasons do not change. It is advertised more consistently than any book at or near its price.

Moral: Be sure to keep adequate stock on hand. Be sure to display the Collegiate prominently. And be sure to recommend the best—it's a genuine Merriam-Webster!

Mr. Bookseller

You often say too many people have no time to read. That is why you should stock picture books. They tell the story more completely and more quickly than words, and interest a much wider section of the community. Use them as a bait and bring new customers to your store. Frequently changed displays of pictures draw the crowd. Studio books are the books for the job. They draw the specialist, the hobby fan and the amateur and bring you new prospects. The list below is a selection worthy of your interest.

JULIA ELLSWORTH FORD BOOKS

IMAGINA

This exquisite and tender tale of a boy in his wistful dreaming suggests the inner world of fancy that lives in every sensitive, imaginative child. The plot, with its delicate flavor of mystery, will delight children and adults alike.

Julia Ellsworth Ford has poured her subtle intuitive heart into every page. After reading the manuscript, Percy MacKaye, the well known poet and dramatist, wrote to the author, "This will be a little classic of its kind. Here are permanent characters in the literature of childhood."

The graceful fantasy of the color illustrations of V. Ulianoff and the unique and appealing simplicity of Lauren Ford's drawings lend added magic and charm to the story.
Price $2.50

SNICKERTY NICK

A two-act play for children in great demand for schools. Illustrated by Arthur Rackham with poems by Witter Bynner. A separate volume contains Charles A. Ridgeway's music. Cloth bound. Price $1.50

This play and music are also on five records, double-faced.
Price $5.00

CONSEQUENCES

After war, what is the world's greatest menace?

In this spirited work of fiction the author dramatizes a mighty problem—one so dominant in contemporary history, so pinching to the human heart, and so closely related to great world policies and potential war between the East and West, that its genuine and outspoken treatment is sure to stir liberals in every land. Price $1.00

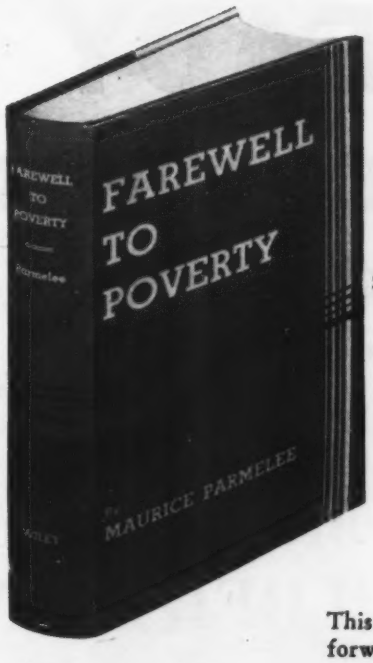
FAREWELL TO POVERTY



By
MAURICE PARMELEE, Ph.D.
Author of "Bolshevism, Fascism and the Liberal-Democratic State" and others

This new book should have a wide appeal, for everyone looks forward to the abolition of depression conditions, with their attendant poverty and hardship. Dr. Parmelee here offers a searching analysis of the causes of poverty and a far-reaching program for its prevention.

The book presents an exhaustive treatment of today's social and economic order, and gives, within the limits of scientific prevision, one of the most concrete and detailed descriptions now possible of the coming social commonwealth. This commonwealth the author believes will be based upon an economy of plenty in which not only will poverty be abolished but a high standard of living will be assured to everyone.

Booksellers should stock this book in quantity if they are to meet the demand which is sure to follow upon publication. Ready October 24th.

The Worst Is Well Over

Travelers, Writing in from the Road, Report That There Is Constantly Increasing Optimism Among Booksellers As Sales Mount Steadily Upward

IT'S GOING TO BE A GOOD FALL SEASON for the booktrade. Rumors that business was really better have been coming into the Publishers' Weekly office all summer, and enthusiasm over publishers' fall lists has been apparent throughout the trade. With these indications in mind we wrote to a number of publishers' travelers asking them what signs they saw in their territories of improving business, or of the reverse, for that matter, if it should be apparent. From the replies, which were, with one exception, highly optimistic, one thing in particular is apparent: the booktrade is entering the new season with high hopes and a thorough conviction that the worst is well over.

One traveler, for instance, who covers a wide territory from New York to St. Louis, says, "There is an optimistic attitude on the part of booksellers which is due not only to increases in sales over last year (ranging from 5% to 60% and averaging somewhere around 23% or 24%, according to verbal reports given me by book buyers), but to an improvement in business and conditions outside the book business. This general lift varies, of course, in different cities and states. Bigger crops and the potential income from them are affecting business generally in the Middle West. Increased rentings of business properties are pointed to as a sure sign of better things to come in the larger cities. Considerably enlarged school and college enrollments are cited as a definite indication of larger buying power." Book buyers, this traveler reports, are expecting something like a 20% to 25% increase this fall over last fall's business.

Hellmut Ripperger, who travels for Oxford and Longmans in the same territory, says, "There does seem to be an improvement in the general state of business in the cities which I visit. Hotels, stores and places of amusement seem to be unusually full and, although I could not give you any tangible reason, to my mind the 'atmosphere' is a better one. This is true of practically every city with the exception of Boston, where the whispering campaign against the present administration is incredibly malignant."

Unusual Optimism

"The feeling of the booksellers," Mr. Ripperger continues, "about fall business is unusually optimistic, and it is definitely reflected in their buying. By this I do not mean quantity buying, which, I am certain, is more or less a thing of the past. Of course, booksellers do buy quantities of individual titles, and I should qualify my original statement of 'quantity buying' by saying that they buy with discrimination, weighing the intrinsic merits of each book rather than buying on past performances of either publisher, author or subject matter of similar books. This brings with it the fact that the average bookseller will now stock ones or twos of titles which he never would have purchased in former years. In other words, neither he nor his clerks are impressed by figures, as in former years, but by the salability of each book as an individual unit. I have always felt that in most cases where a hundred or more copies of a single title were purchased by a store, the clerks heaved a sigh of relief when the last copy was sold, with an exclamation of 'Thank God we got rid of those!' This is a moot point and one that might well involve a good deal of discussion."

Two High Spots

Manley H. Jones, of Houghton Mifflin, whose travels carry him from New York to Nebraska, and who has just returned from a six weeks' trip through his territory, reports that the two spots in which the book business seems to have responded most rapidly to outside influences are Washington, D. C., and the Middle Western states into which the AAA has sent money for farm assistance.

"In the case of Washington," Mr. Jones remarks, "the reason for improvement is well known and has been evident for the past year or two. In the case of the Middle Western states, however, the improvement has just been showing up, an improvement which is a very substantial one and which has given the stores through this section quite an optimistic feeling.

"Throughout the rest of the territory," Mr. Jones continues, "there is a similar feeling of optimism among the booksellers that the fall will bring good business not only because of the improvement of general conditions but because of the strength evidenced in the fall lists. My own sales were materially ahead of those for the same trip last year." Mr. Jones lists as cities which have shown the most spectacular increases, Washington, D. C.; Toledo, Ohio; Dayton, Ohio; Columbus, Ohio; Syracuse, N. Y., and Albany, N. Y.

Some Infallible Signs

James D. Blake of Harper's, whose territory extends from Kansas City to the Coast, says, "There are many signs of improved business and some of them are infallible. For instance: many buyers who last year weren't allowed to go across the street to see a 'trunk man' are now being sent to New York. It is no longer like pulling teeth to get a buyer into a sample room. Many bookstore buyers are actually placing stock orders and some of them confirm. Several buyers yowl because they are badly stuck with low-priced merchandise; demand is for better books. As for general business, here are some sure signs of improvement: quite a few hotel 'front offices' are getting snooty; sample room rates are being raised; restaurant prices are going up; no longer may one be sure of getting a lower in a Pullman at the last minute, and hotel reservations in advance are in order again.

"Practically every bookseller I've talked to," Mr. Blake adds, "is pleased with his business and hopeful for the future. And stocking accordingly."

Improvement Is General

Silas K. Peavy, who covers the Central Atlantic states for Macmillan says, "Motor traffic is heavier, trains, street cars and busses are carrying larger crowds. There are fewer vacant stores. Public Works are giving employment directly or indirectly to millions in my territory. Hotels are no longer half-empty and conventions are bigger and noisier. Tax collections have improved to such an extent that many libraries are again able to purchase a book and, in phenomenal cases, two books.

"I'm sure the trade anticipates better business, but very few booksellers will say so. I think most of them are banded together in a diabolical plot in which any admission of improved conditions would ruin their plans to force publishers to grant all booksellers 50% on all orders, less 8%-ten days, plus 100% return privileges, plus millions for co-operative advertising, and plus several score 1200-page best sellers retailing for not more than $1.50—new titles, of course."

Charles R. Marshall, New England representative for Garden City Publishing Co., says, "General business in New England seems as good as last year. More people than ever seem to be traveling through these states. We gamble here on the number of out-of-New England license plates we can find during any one month. This year there have been more than ever. Tourists must have money. Let's hope they will keep some to spend on books in Duluth, Detroit, Dallas and San Francisco.

"Book buyers seem to feel that they know now where they stand. If they are not optimistic, they at least have begun to talk about tomorrow and are not whining about the past. Last year everybody wanted to wait, wait, wait to do their Christmas buying. This year they are welcoming sales talks now. They want to know what's to come later."

Franklin M. Watts, who represents a number of publishers in New England and the Middle West, says, "Crops are good through most of the Middle West, which will put a lot of money in circulation, as the prices seem to be good also. In my summer trip I did not hear one sour note about poor business in the whole Middle West. In the East there still seems to be a lot of genuine pessimism."

"Prospects Are Elegant"

H. Dickson Ash, trade representative for the John C. Winston Co., says that he, for one, is enthusiastic about this fall's outlook. Says Mr. Ash, "Like Edna Ferber in 'So Big' who said, 'Cabbages are beautiful,' so with the prosaic book business, I believe, 'Fall prospects are elegant.'

"The general tendency of business comment is distinctly encouraging and there is no doubt about a strengthening of confidence. All outlets including the smaller shops are perceptibly increasing the frequency and amounts of reorders and the impeding arguments of buyers are just a trifle easier to overcome. One reason for this is the lack of monuments formerly occasioned by the depression in business."

"Business Is on the Make"

Storer Lunt, of W. W. Norton & Co., says, "Business is positively on the make this autumn. Not only have I had the best fall trip, in dollars and cents, in my five years' association with the Norton firm, but this has been the first trip in too many seasons where again and again booksellers have seized on a book with the point of view of what they can do with it rather than with the old 'how many do we have to have' attitude. The depression habits of mind are being broken and those booksellers who are smart are going to make money this fall."

Another traveler with a wide territory, who asks us not to use his name, says he cannot honestly say that he saw any general improvement in business. "Some dealers in some cities," he reports, "specifically St. Paul and Minneapolis, report a gain. Others seem to have slid back, and my general impression is that the situation is approximately the same as last year, although our own books are going better, due, I think, to the fact that we have a much stronger line than last fall. I believe that most booksellers feel fairly hopeful."

R. B. Fisk, who travels for a number of publishers, says: "In covering smaller cities in the ten Central States I have found business better this year than in the past five years. Storekeepers have a brighter expression than in the past, are more willing to buy, and nearly all have increased in sales over the year 1934.

"This territory depends mostly on the farmer, and through observation and inquiry, I find that crops look very favorable, except in Minnesota, North and South Dakota where small grains have fallen off due to excessive rust. Manufacture has been somewhat better but can stand considerable improvement.

"I have found very little difficulty in selling the book dealers. They are optimistic and most of them are looking forward to good fall business."

Good News for Columbia

Joseph A. Duffy, Jr., trade manager for the Columbia University Press, is afraid he is the last person in the world capable of giving unbiased information on general conditions. "Believe it or not," he says, "the advance sale on 'The Columbia Encyclopedia' has been so phenomenal that it makes one think of the long forgotten days. In my swing through the major cities of the Middle West, many booksellers placed their orders for 100's and 250's of a book to retail at $15. Many of these dealers have not thought in such quantities for years, even on lesser priced books. In general, I should say things are looking up, and I am convinced that two years ago, or even one year ago, we could not have hopes for a fraction of the sale the Encyclopedia is this year enjoying. Out of all this, there is one fact that stands out conspicuously, and that is, that booksellers generally still know a good book when they see one, and have the courage to undertake a real selling job when necessary."

We hadn't intended to let titles creep into a general article like this, but Mr. Duffy's letter serves well to illustrate the one salient fact that may be discerned from all the travelers' reports, that the booktrade is really optimistic, and is backing up its optimism with real orders.

Cash In on Photography

There Are Millions of Amateur Photographers Who Are Potential Steady Customers of the Bookstore That Will Carry the Books They Need

ROBERT DISRAELI

The Clown, a photograph by Robert Disraeli; from "U. S. Camera, 1935" (Morrow)

IT HAS BEEN ALWAYS MYSTERIOUS TO ME why bookshops do not attempt to sell books on photography. In every store one can find representative books for the amateur about bridge playing, stamp collecting, woodcarving, sculpture, painting, etc., but few, if any, books about amateur photography. The photographic hobby is one of the widely distributed avocations in the United States. It is firmly established and has a vast literature which has never found the distribution that it should and can have. The three leading periodicals for the amateur photographer are: American Photography, Boston, Mass.; Camera, Philadelphia, Pa.; and Camera Craft, San Francisco, Cal. The first magazine has been established for forty-six years; the others for thirty-five years.

The majority of the millions of camera users are only interested in snapping mama and the babies, but ALL are primarily interested in getting good pictures. Despite the improvement in films, camera and accessories, the average of good pictures made by the amateur is still very low. He asks, how can he better his pictures? At this point the bookseller can step in, by advertising to the amateur that he has the books which will answer all his questions about making better photographs.

A survey of photographic books reveals first of all that they can be divided roughly into two classes. Firstly, those books that deal with camera technique, elementary and advanced; and also almanacs and annuals that are compilations of the best pictures of the year. Secondly, books for adults and children that use photographs illustratively or textually. Of this second class more anon.

The Technique

In the first class, the selling prices of books dealing with the technique of picture making range from a low of twenty-five cents to a high of five dollars. The lowest priced book on photography is published as a Leisure League Little Book "Photography for Fun" by William M. Strong ($.25). It explains simply and concisely how to expose, develop and finish pictures. This is perhaps the most elementary book published.

"How to Make Good Pictures" by Eastman Kodak Co., Rochester, N. Y. ($.50) is a satisfactory book on film technique for the amateur who cannot and will not spend much for a photographic book. It is in its twentieth edition and has sold over one million copies. The typographical clearness and the gay layout enhance the precise and simple explanations and the many pictures that it contains. Its attractiveness sells it immediately.

Among a group of paper covered man-uals under the general title "Practical Photography," published by the American Photographic Publishing Co., Boston, Mass. ($.40), the following: No. 2—"Beginner's Troubles" and No. 8—"The Elements of Photography" are the most satisfactory for the amateur.

In the higher price bracket is the new and revised edition of "Practical Amateur Photography" by William S. Davies, published by Little, Brown & Co. ($2.25). This book which has had a steady sale for the last thirteen years will appeal to that amateur who is lost beyond recall in the mysteries of photography.

One of the most beautiful books I have ever seen that deals with photographic technique is "Making a Photograph" by Ansel Adams, published by Studio Publications, N. Y. ($3.50). This is of particular interest to the amateur who has advanced further than the stage of clicking the camera.

There are a number of other books along these lines that I did not mention. Peculiarly, the ordinary publisher, with few exceptions, seems to have neglected this particular enterprise, so that for the most detailed information about photographic publications one must turn to the publishers of the three leading photographic magazines, which are mentioned above. The Service Department of the Eastman Kodak Co. at Rochester, N. Y., will also be glad to furnish information along these lines. These companies are the publishers of the majority of the authoritative books about photography.

Merchandizing Suggestions

If I were a bookseller and had acquired several of these books and a few magazines about photography, what would I do with them? The very last thing I would do would be to place them on a shelf and label the section PHOTOGRAPHY. Even though photo-books do not date rapidly, on the average they are good for two and three years.

I would get into contact first of all with the local Camera Club. I know, that they, if correctly approached, will be flattered to have an exhibition in your store or window of their prize prints. If you have your choice of selecting the exhibition pictures, I would suggest selecting those pictures that have a universal appeal: mother and baby, the doggy playing with little Theodore, a romantically treated landscape, preferably one of the neighborhood with which everyone is acquainted. With these pictures and your books you can make an attractive window display that will have an enormous pulling power. Needless to say, the propitious moment of the year must also be considered. The two most favorable seasons for such sales are a few weeks before Christmas and a week or so before May 30th. Find out from your local druggist and photo-finisher when film and camera sales start going up and tie up your displays with that moment. In this manner you will let the amateur photographer of your neighborhood know that you have the books on elementary photography which will answer his questions.

The amateur photographer possesses one of those delightful hobbies which will lead him, if he dares to show more than the slightest interest, into deep waters. Among your first customers there will be a number who will come back and ask for books on specialized divisions of photography. It is at this point that a bookseller must be, as usual, many things to many men. He should know something about the many books published on photography so that when a customer asks for a book on speed photography, he will know what the customer is talking about. He can offer him one of the Photominiature Series of Pamphlets published by Tennant & Ward (N. Y.), Photominiature No. 1, "Speed Photography" ($.40). Perhaps the customer desires to create artistic pictures, then suggest to him "The Principles of Photographic Pictorialism" by F. C. Tilny, F.R.P.S., American Photographic Publishing Co. ($5.00). He may have bought one of these little cameras that take pictures of you when you're not looking, then "The Leica Manual" published by Morgan & Lester, 1 Pershing Square, N. Y. ($4.00), is just the thing he needs. Another group of books that may interest not only your camera fan customers but also those who appreciate fine and artistic pictures are the photographic annuals and almanacs. Among the leading ones are "Modern Photography," Studio Publications, Inc., N. Y. ($3.50); "The British Journal Photographic Almanac ($1.50) . . . which not only features splendid pictorial material but also textual matter that is of interest to all photographers; "The American Annual of Photography" ($2.25); "Photograms of the Year—1935" ($3.50), American Photographic Publishing Co.; the always splendid and exciting "Photographie" published in France and distributed by Westermann. Soon there will appear a new publication "U. S. Camera—1935," Morrow & Co. (October 2, $2.75.)

Other Photographic Books

By acquainting others that you have such books in stock you will draw into your store a group of people from which you can build up a nucleus of new and constant customers whose interests extend beyond the scope of technical photographic books. Furthermore, the contact with your local camera club can be made invaluable to your business. Correctly handled the individuals that comprise such a club can become the nucleus of customers around which you can build a constant sale of the type of photographic books that have become popular lately. I refer to such books as: "Eyes on the World," Simon & Schuster ($3.75); "Metropolis," Harper & Bros. ($3.00); "The Breathless Moment," Knopf ($3.00), etc.

We all like to look at pictures. It seems to be almost instinctive that a picture will rivet our eyes long before type has any effect upon us. The picture book speaks a universal language that is understood by all. Why is it then that it has not been more successful? One of the causes may be, that the average bookseller doesn't quite know what the picture book is all about. A photobook has one drawback in comparison with other books. It can be read within a few minutes. The more pictures and the less text, the more difficult it seems to sell a photographic book because the customer can read it on the spot. The only exception seems to be a children's book. Why? It is not solely because there is a greater demand for children's books. There should be an even greater demand for adult photo-books. If you watch a small child closely as it looks over a photographic book you will be able to deduce the answer of how to sell photographic books to adults. A child looking at the photographed antics of a dog or cat completely identifies his experiences with that of the dog or cat even beyond the printed picture. When a customer shows a decided interest in a book of photographs, it is my opinion that he must be subtly coached into the idea that a book composed of photographs cannot be read like a book composed of words. That he must read into the pictures the totality of his past and present experiences. For example: "The Breathless Moment" shows us a collection of pictures of critical and catastrophic moments in the activities of the world. Merely to look at these pictures and not penetrate beyond them is a complete misreading of the book. The last picture in the book shows a negro burning at the stake. If the reaction of this picture is simply a feeling of horror, the book is a failure. But when the picture gives rise to discussion about lynching as a social and psychological phenomenon, the book and the picture is a success.

"Eyes on the World" attempted to picture the present state of civilization. Pictures and newspaper headlines were so arranged and juxtaposed that they deliberately clashed or harmonized affecting either enthusiasm or resentment on the part of the reader. The pictures caused discussion and the ideas expressed by them aroused criticism either pro or con. In this manner the book accomplishes its purpose. Another book of this type was "What So Proudly We Hailed," Macaulay ($3.50). This was a deliberate political expression in pictures on the part of its editor. If we do not agree, it arouses our resentment; and if we agree with him, our enthusiasm.

Two outstanding examples of another type of photographic book which has recently appeared and whose sales possibilities have not been appreciated are "Metropolis" (Harper, $3.00) and "Men and Ships of Steel," Morrow & Co. ($3.50). In these books an attempt was made to picture the activities of man in a definite social environment. In the first book, the large city; in the latter, the U. S. fleet.

Books for children are becoming more and more photographic. And for good reasons. The reality of a photograph seems to appeal to a child intensely. He not only correlates his experiences with what he sees in the picture, but also extends his experiences by means of the photographic picturebook. In this psychological fact lies also your selling point. By helping to extend a child's experiences, the photographic book has a distinct value in educating him towards reality. Recent educational experiments of the pedagogical value of photographs has resulted in a demand for photographic textbooks in classrooms.

There is no need to mention the many fine photographic books for children that have been published in recent years, they are too well known. Among the forthcoming children's books, quite a number are illustrated by the camera. "Talking Wires" by Clara Lambert, Macmillan ($2.00). This is a story of the telephone, splendidly told in words and pictures.

"Five Cats from Siam," McBride ($2.00) is a fine collection of cat pictures by Thurman Rotan with an accompanying text by May Lamberton Becker.

"Heroes of the Shoals" by Allen Chaffee, Holt ($2.00), is a collection of stories about the coastguard accompanied with good photographic illustrations.

"Moviemakers" by John J. Floherty, Doubleday, Doran ($2.00). This book should be exciting to any boy since it deals with the actual production of motion pictures.

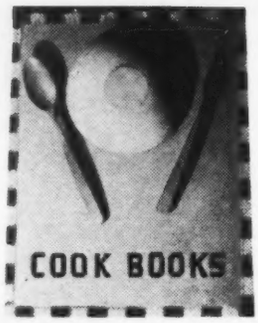
"Blinky" by Agnes A. Atkinson, Viking ($1.50), (a biography of a Ringtail), is the exciting story of a little rodent who was photographed in extremely amusing positions.

"The Steel Book" by William C. and Helen S. Pryor, Harcourt, Brace & Co. ($1.00) is a photographic story of the making and uses of steel.

Eighty-Eight, from "Making a Photograph" (Studio)

I have tried to show that the sales possibilities of photographic books have not yet been fully exploited. The technical books are sold only in small quantities primarily because very few people seem to know of their existence. A bookseller who can emphasize that he has valuable technical data for sale can not only acquire new customers in that field, but by patient and assiduous cultivation, there will grow from these customers a group that will buy the higher priced photographic books. The hobby of photography seems to have a broadening effect on the mind, and your arduous amateur is interested in any type of illustrated photographic book. One of the largest photographic supply stores in N. Y. that caters to amateurs carries all of the recent non-technical photo-books in stock. They make no special effort to sell them, nevertheless, the books seem to be moving constantly.

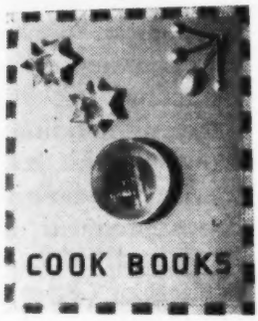
The future of the photographic book depends not only on the customer, but also on the editors and the booksellers.



More Cookery Books

H. L. RIPPERGER

Oxford University Press



EVEN BEFORE MY SECOND ARTICLE had appeared in The Publishers' Weekly, I was deluged with letters from both sides of the Atlantic (well, one from England, anyway) taking me to task for not including this or that title. For a time I was tempted to prepare a third called, "Books I Forgot to Mention, or Publishers' Reminders." I repeat now, what I said then, that any paper dealing with cookery books would have to be selective in view of the extraordinary scope of the material involved.

With no little personal satisfaction, I soon learned that my thesis was correct, namely that with some slight effort, cookery books, both old and new, could be sold by the average bookshop. One shop sold one customer sixty-five dollars' worth of these at one time; another, some forty dollars' worth, and other shops reported special sales to individuals in varying amounts. A number of shops merely clipped the lists, submitted them to likely customers and then wrote up the orders. Others arranged special displays with equally gratifying results.

A sale, arranged by the Women's Educational and Industrial Union of Boston at Swampscott this summer, not only deserves special mention but may act as a stimulus to other shops. The display was arranged by the Bookshop for Boys and Girls and inasmuch as I was not able to see it, it might best be described in the words of Miss Darling: "The Bookshop was allotted the old billiard room, dark panelled, with a window-seated alcove slightly raised above the main floor level. Gay red and white checked paper from the 5 & 10 covered the long table, and fluttered as curtains from the alcove windows; the same paper edged our home-made posters; beaverboard with letters in bright contrasting blue; on one a small wooden bowl, salad fork and spoon were glued. On the other, shining cooky cutters and measuring spoons (also from Mr. Woolworth); red tomatoes ripening on the window ledges carried out the color scheme, and for the center of the long table we had a big wooden bowl heaped with vegetables, scarlet peppers, carrots with their green feather-tops, onions pearly white, a festive and inexpensive decoration. Cook books (cookery books, Miss Darling, please) on the table, cook books on the window seat. We had dozens and dozens, all kinds and prices. Compliments most gratifying; sales figures doubled from the two preceding years, all from having a colorful plan and spending a scant dollar and a half at Woolworth's and the corner grocer's. We intend using the accessories in our Boylston Street window and we know we are making our public think of cook books and actually 'creating' new sales." I did see the posters, and they were no end attractive, and they could be made up by any shop with as little trouble and at but a small cost. Many stores, other than bookshops, borrow accessories from friendly neighbors with which to augment the window display of their own wares, and I see no reason why bookshops could not do the same. Sparkling glassware and china to set up a miniature table, pots and pans (copper or aluminum) with which to create the illusion of a kitchen would be an excellent background for cookery books in windows or on shop tables. It should not be necessary, nor even advisable, to concentrate a display on one book alone, merely using a new book as an excuse for showing many. There is an important line in Miss Darling's description: "We had dozens and dozens, all kinds and prices."

[Mr. Ripperger is the author of "Cookery Books for Gourmets" in the September 29, 1934, and October 13, 1934, issues of the Publishers' Weekly. The illustrations shown above are of the home-made posters used by the Bookshop for Boys and Girls, using actual cooking utensils.]

New Books

"The Gentle Art of Cookery" by Mrs. C. F. Leyel and Miss Olga Hartley, though a reprint, is one of the outstanding cookery books of the year, now available in the very satisfactory Phoenix Library. The book differs in many ways from all others in that the receipts are arranged "in the only practical way, that is, under their principal ingredients, because it is more economical to do as the French do, shop first, and then arrange the dinner according to what is most plentiful in the market, than to go out and buy what is necessary for a pre-arranged menu." I quote these lines from the book's introduction because the idea is not only excellent but also because it is a splendid selling point for so splendid a book. Aside from this arrangement, there are excellent chapters on flowers receipts, "all of them delicious and easy to make," one dealing with an Arabian Nights dinner with the real receipts for the actual dishes mentioned in the Tales, a whole chapter devoted to children's cookery (surely an innovation) and the things mentioned will not only appeal to children but can be made by them as well, and many more of equal interest.

"The Cold Table" compiled and edited by Helen Simpson with the assistance of Petrie Townshend, should be stocked and sold, and then restocked. It runs the whole gamut of the kitchen from hors d'oeuvres to savouries (it is an import as the last will indicate). In addition it deals with the chilling of food, sandwiches, drinks, invalids, the nursery and, last but not least, it gives a table of English and American weights and measures. All of the receipts are of exceptional quality, and my only quarrel with the book is the faulty proof-reading which has resulted in numerous errors, but these are merely typographical and do not affect its usefulness. Not the least amusing is a receipt for Crystal Mould in which we are told "to dissolve the jelly as directed. Lie in a plain mould with some of this, and decorate." Rather a difficult feat that, but as Fred Wood of Doubleday's pointed out, "It would be fun to try."

Illustrated by the artist who made Fortnum and Mason's catalogs famous, "Gourmet's Book of Food and Drink" will go down the cookery ages as a real classic. I defy any one to put it down after having read the first ten pages. It has so much to commend

A wooden bowl heaped with vegetables formed the centerpiece of the attractive display of cookery books arranged at Swampscott this summer by the Bookshop for Boys and Girls it to both shop and customer, that it is a difficult task indeed to mention one feature rather than another. To begin with, its dedication, To My Wife Who can make an Omelette, is superb in itself. Was ever a woman more fitly or perfectly described? With deeper love or greater esteem? Speaking of omelettes, the anonymous author gives five fables and seven rules concerning them, and not a single word should be missed. Who could resist a cookery book which quotes those immortal lines of Hilaire Belloc's:

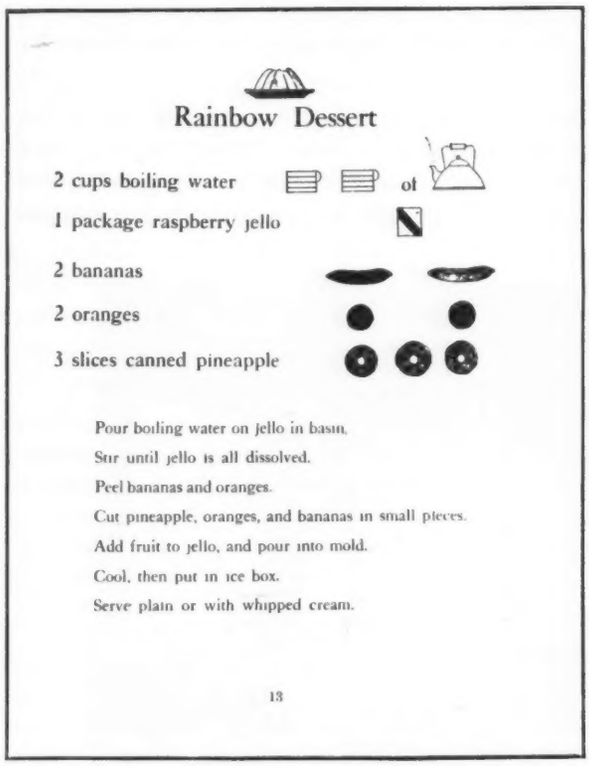
"Birds in their little nests agree
With Chinamen, but not with me"?

To digress for a moment, the makers of onion soup, like Caesar's Gaul, are divided into three parts, those who use water, those who use stock or broth and those who use, ugh,



Rainbow Dessert

2 cups boiling water of
1 package raspberry jello
2 bananas
2 oranges
3 slices canned pineapple

Pour boiling water on jello in basin.
Stir until jello is all dissolved.
Peel bananas and oranges.
Cut pineapple, oranges, and bananas in small pieces.
Add fruit to jello, and pour into mold.
Cool, then put in ice box.
Serve plain or with whipped cream.

I dread the very words, those who use bouillon cubes! Our gourmet (for surely he must be one to write for others) belongs to the right party. Read page 92 to see if you, too, are among the élite. All in all, this is a rare treat for the really discriminating and it is a joy to find him giving credit where credit is due. He not only "lifts" receipts in toto but occasionally tells you where the ones he lifts were originally lifted!

Lady Mendl's "Elsie De Wolfe's Recipes for Successful Dining" is a curious little book and one which should find a small but appreciative public. It has an air and that, after all, is something. True, I would not care to sit down to a meal spread on a cloth of silver lamé (gold lamé is used at Christmas) for the cleaner's bills would be ever present in my mind, but her menus are enchanting . . . even if one did not eat them.

Whittlesey House has produced the cook and housekeeper's vade mecum in Dorothy Myerson's "Homemaker's Handbook." Every one of its 566 pages is packed with solid and useful information. Usually books of this sort fall down in one section or another, but as far as I can judge, this is not true of the present book. The portion dealing with food and its preparation (it covers the major portion of the whole) is excellent and though more on the "practical" side, it can be recommended both wisely and cheerfully to the beginner as well as the accomplished cook.

"Alice Foote MacDougall's Cook Book" is a horse of another color. At the time I was translating the Baroness von Nostitz-Hindenburg's "Dialogs with Rodin," she took me to a "real Spanish place" as she called it, and lo, we arrived at Alice Foote MacDougall's. Here, I was told, is a cookery book and even the publisher's blurb led me to believe the same thing, and lo, it is nothing but a book. The author herself says "This, however, is no cook book. . . ." Lest I be damned for being too severe with the book or accused of having given it but a cursory examination, let me say at the start, that I read every one of its 292 pages. And with each page my wonderment increased. There is not a single novelty in the book (unless it be the cover and I shall have something to say about that a little later on) and the receipts that are given are often sketchy, incomplete and never inspiring. Mrs. MacDougall's main theme is economy, economy and more economy, but not of a sort that could possibly appeal to anyone. It may interest some to know that she "slits envelopes and uses the inside for all necessary figuring" but is anyone curious about "beautiful uses may be made of salt and flour bags?" Which is immediately followed by "also, in clear dry weather, you can make fairly good soles for your little child's worn-out shoes by using carefully cut and shaped cardboard made from cereal cartons." Come, come, Mrs. MacDougall. What to do when the weather is wet, and it is sometimes. Am I to ruthlessly cut up the mickey mice on my Supersuds cartons (not a cereal, I'll admit) to make soles? Your soles should be "fillets of." And please, if I must make cardboard soles, can I do so in wet weather and wear them in dry? And must I use Nutheart cocoa when I much prefer Maillard or Baker? And will my Bavarian Cream (I've never had it in Bavaria) be a failure if I don't? Will my tea, both as a social function and a drink, place me in Coventry if I don't use Domino sugar "that comes in pink, green and yellow?" "They do not always improve the tea" you say and then add quickly, "Still, they are pretty." Pretty what? Pretty awful! Must I buy my chili powder at Macy's and may I please, just once, do my deep frying in something other than Crisco? And now for the cover. Says the publisher, so that Mrs. MacDougall will not get all the credit for humour in the book, "The cloth is washable; it will not stain. Drop on it hot tea (with pink or yellow sugar?) or coffee (best results are with a Universal Coffee Pot, says Mrs. MacD.), raw egg, jam, lemon juice, even alcohol, and prove it. (What about Nutheart cocoa? I bet that will!)

Your Mexican Kitchen

Natalie V. Scott, well-known for her "200 Years of New Orleans Cooking" and her able collaboration in "The Gourmet's Guide to New Orleans" has just finished a Mexican cookery book to be called "Your Mexican Kitchen" which is to be published later this month. The book has an interesting introduction and her choice of receipts, as far as I can judge, has been done well. Despite the foreign, though delightful, titles, the reader will easily recognize old friends. There is a simplicity about the whole which gives it added charm. A good receipt for potato and leek soup becomes al pobre diabolo merely by omitting the cream and egg yolks and remains equally good. Anyone liking good food will admire the wisdom of the Mexican upon learning that "the salads are of the simpler sort, the elaborations with fruits and mayonnaise and chopped nuts and cheese mixtures finding little favor, even where they are known." The italics are mine. Monastery Sauce, which is apparently used where we would use a cocktail sauce, is made of "well seasoned mayonnaise and pickled English walnuts." The book abounds in delights such as this. There are a number of clever illustrations. The galleys which the publishers kindly lent me do not include an index, an omission which I hope will be remedied before the book goes through the press.

Of equal interest is Erna Ferguson's "Mexican Cookbook" with illustrations by Valentin Vidaurreta. This is not as ambitious in scope as "Your Mexican Kitchen" but it should not be neglected for that reason. The receipts are excellent, and the book is a delightful example of good printing and binding.

Children's Books

Most shops are apparently familiar with Marjorie Noble Osborn's "Jolly Times Cook Book" but one that to my mind is much better and with much more juvenile appeal is "Kitchen Fun" by Louise Price Bell. Though the receipts are few in number, they are both simple and practical. I know, for I have tried some of them. All weights and measures are used pictorially, i.e., the picture of a cup half full indicates a half cup and 4 teaspoons are shown by the actual drawing of four spoons. Oven temperatures and timing are carefully given in each receipt.

Plus Sales

There are three items which I should like to suggest to bookshops, which they might legitimately stock and sell. First, two series of postcards published by the Medici Society, each series consisting of six cards. They are the Herb Garden Series edited by Eleanor Sinclair Rhode with water-color drawings by Hilda M. Coley. The drawings are attractively done in pastel shades and the notations such as "Lad's love keeps moths out of clothes" and "Lungwort also called 'Soldiers and Sailors' heals the lungs" have a quaint charm. In shops where I have seen them for sale, the cards were priced at five cents each.

The second is "The Recipe Book of Herbs." This has but 21 pages and its format is about 2x3 inches. It is a slight thing but one which shops could profitably stock.

Finally, "Cinq Potages" conceived and published by the Horn Book in Boston. Here are five delicious soup receipts, each printed in French and English on red-bordered post cards enclosed in a gay blue-and-white checked envelope. The receipts are surrounded by delightful pencil sketches of French village women, and the cards punctured ready to hang up in the kitchen. The whole makes an unusually delightful possession for one's self or one's housekeeping friends, or even for non-housekeeping persons who like good things to eat and the French language. Shops can purchase these at an advantageous discount.

Finally, I would say to those shops that like to have complete lists of cookery books, that they would do well to purchase the June and July Bulletins of the New York Public Library which contain an excellent check list on Regional American Cookery, 1884-1934, prepared by James E. Gourley.

I HOLD every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men of course do seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves, by way of amends, to be a help and ornament thereunto. —Bacon.

The Map Unfolds

"Chocorua is not as big as the Matterhorn," wrote Samuel M. Crothers, one of the many lovers of that most beautiful of New England mountains, "but the principle is the same."

Not many publishing seasons bring forth high peaks of literature—genius is too rare and inspiration too infrequent—but there are many books each season, less than masterpieces, in which "the principle is the same." They give to those who search them out the same sense of exaltation.

Browsing among the new books of a fall season is like touring the high roads and byways of an unexplored countryside. Occasionally such travel brings suddenly to view an uplifted peak, a Chocorua among the lower hills. The person is fortunate who has this experience. Others may come to the same peak by different roads and at different times, but to each the discovery is a personal thing. They have discovered not a Matterhorn, a Ranier or a Long's Peak, but, "the principle is the same" and it is worth much travel in the foothills to get such an experience.

The mountain peaks of the world have almost all been charted and their heights fixed, but literature is not a fixed landscape; the peaks of the old sections of the map are still there for anyone to reclimb, but the peaks ahead are still to be charted, and, for all that can be known, others appear in the next unfolding section of the map that may be as high as any in the past. Scouts are stationed all along the frontier watching the horizon, but, though the scout may raise the cry, each traveler makes his own path, discovers the vistas for himself, and locates his own springs of refreshment.

Each fall the map of literary production unrolls at an increasing pace; the book lovers walk about restlessly trying this trail and that, finding pastures that have a familiar look, thickets too hard to penetrate and disturbing abysses, but also fresh views, and new heights.

Four thousand books lie now just before us in the American fall publishing season. This index gives its readers the names of those books, but only the names. Their real discovery comes on the counters of the bookshop, and in the homes to which they are taken. The low hills and productive plains of landscape or books are delightful to explore but we keep on the search for the high peaks.

Good Courses Offered

Courses on the arts of the book are increasing in number and in attendance in New York City, and this fall, as has already been noted in announcements in the Publishers' Weekly, Columbia University, New York University, the New School for Social Research and the Extension Division of the University of California have all announced courses of value. To have such courses available in the center of American publishing is extremely important, and it is to be hoped that publishers may take the initiative in seeing that members of their staffs take advantage of these opportunities. Those who enroll for such courses will bring back to their offices fresh ideas from lectures and informal talks, and increasing attendance will encourage the universities to go forward with their plans into other seasons.

Printing, bookbinding, book layout, book illustration, the history of books are covered in various ways by these programs. In none of these programs is there any attention to bookselling, and this should be considered by some of these institutions, most appropriately by Columbia, which has conducted successful courses on bookselling over several summers before curtailed attendance resulting from hard times made it difficult to get adequate classes together. In England the Booksellers' Association has been able to start admirably planned courses which are held from September to March on each Monday evening. Included in these courses are such practical subjects as "The Handling of Stock Arrangement," "Information the Bookseller Needs to Know About Bookmaking and Bookbinding," a brief course on "Twentieth Century Literature," lectures on "Book Display," "Advertising" and "Mail-Order Salesmanship" and "Service in the Bookshop." These lectures are given by various people, those on "Store Management" by J. G. Wilson, who has made Bumpus's bookstore in London world famous.

One-Issue Publication Again

THE PLAN OF ISSUING a complete novel in one issue which Red Book Magazine used last year has now been adopted by Cosmopolitan which is making the plan the keynote to its subscription campaign. The October issue contains the story "Mystery House" by Kathleen Norris, about 120,000 words in length, two pages of text being placed in the front of the magazine and the balance carried through with succeeding pages of advertising in the back. The low cost in comparison with the price of a book is made as conspicuous as possible, and a large facsimile of a bound book appears on the page containing an introductory note reading in part: "Dear Reader: You hold in your hand the first complete book-length novel ever to appear in Cosmopolitan. It was written by Kathleen Norris, whose novels have never before appeared complete in one issue of any magazine. Hereafter, each month, in addition to our regular contents, we shall include a long novel of the same high quality you admired so much in our short novels. Other book-length novels to appear in the next few months will be by such favorites of yours as Warwick Deeping, Agatha Christie, Samuel Hopkins Adams, Ellery Queen and others."

This plan of publication has been found profitable by authors, as the rates paid by magazines are high. It gives the publisher of the book severe competition. The publication complete in one issue cannot by any means be considered as serial publication under any definition of the word. The effort to build up interest in a product at the expense of a competitor has been frowned upon in many industries and its appearance in the book field has seemed most unfortunate.

Here's Hoping

THE COUNTRY STARTS OFF its fall business with an optimism that is not pretense, and fortunately there is every sign that the book-trade, which sometimes lags behind other industries in feeling the upturn, seems ready to take advantage of the new conditions. From almost every Federal Reserve district in the country there have come reports of an upturn in retail sales. The reports gathered from department stores give prophesy of a 15% increase for the rest of the year and about 45% of the yearly volume of such stores is usually done in the last few months. This encouragement did not begin with the President's announcement of a "breathing spell," but that encouragement has echoed in the Stock Exchange and raised the spirits of some of those closely affected by the figures from there.

There is nothing the bookseller would so like in the weeks ahead instead of a chance to get his breath as a chance to lose his breath by hard, strenuous work. He will have to check up lists, to try to anticipate demands, to add to stock items here and there, to plan letters and to speed up shipping departments. All the bookseller asks is a reasonable chance to be put to these tests. If he can have holidays that require night work from Thanksgiving to Christmas, he will ask for nothing better, and the tired bookseller on New Year's will be a happy bookseller with money in his till which will more than pay January bills. Here's hoping!

FALL ANNOUNCEMENT NUMBER

This issue contains a complete index to the forthcoming books of the Fall season. Extra copies may be secured from the Publishers' Weekly at 25 cents apiece, or 75 cents bound in cloth.

News of the Week

Col. Roosevelt Joins Doubleday

COLONEL THEODORE ROOSEVELT, eldest son of the late President Theodore Roosevelt and former Governor-General of the Philippines, has joined the firm of Doubleday, Doran & Co., it was announced this week. The belief that a publishing house should be in constant touch with national affairs and the conviction that the closest possible contact should be kept between the field of literature and that of governmental and political activities led to the association of the Doubleday organization with the late Walter Hines Page, the announcement stated. This same principle is now furthered by the association of Col. Roosevelt. Colonel Roosevelt indicated that, although he would start at once to take an active part in the publishing business, it would not interfere with the public work he had planned for the Republican party in the approaching campaign.

F. N. Doubleday and President Theodore Roosevelt were intimate friends and President Roosevelt laid the cornerstone of the Garden City plant of Doubleday, Doran in 1910. Both F. N. Doubleday and the former President felt that good books on public affairs had an important influence on the reading life of the country.

Former President Roosevelt also had other contacts with the publishing industry. George Haven Putnam in "Memories of a Publisher" relates that Theodore Roosevelt when he was 24 years old, after finishing his course at Harvard and spending some time on a ranch in the West, came into the Putnam offices "with the word that he had some literary ambitions and that he would like to try the experiment of being a publisher." Putnam's were at that time paying off a special partner who wanted to take up ranching in California and Theodore Roosevelt was taken in as a special or limited partner, a place which he retained for several years.

Evidence of the policies which have brought about Col. Roosevelt's association with Doubleday is the announcement that early in October the firm will publish "Hell Bent for Election," a series of articles critical of President Roosevelt, by James P. Warburg, which have been appearing in the New York Herald Tribune.

NRA Legislation Planned

A NEW BILL which will provide specific Congressional definition of fair and unfair trade practices, with the drafting of detailed codes left to voluntary actions by industries, is tentatively under consideration in Washington as the possible outline for a new NRA plan. The House Ways and Means Committee which will do the preliminary work in writing new NRA legislation in line with a request of President Roosevelt, has indicated four high points of the proposed bill. They are: 1) The legislation must be within the limits of authority as specified in the Supreme Court's NRA decision;

2) It should declare what are unfair practices in business;

3) It must limit application of any program to interstate commerce or to that which directly affects interstate commerce;

4) It probably will provide for a body with authority to determine facts, with the right of appeal to courts from the agency's finding.

New Book Club Announced by Sheed & Ward

SHEED & WARD have announced the opening of a new book club, the Sheed & Ward Book Society for the end of this month. Members will pay a subscription of $18 a year and will receive in each month except July and August a new Sheed & Ward book. The ten books will total not less than $25 in value. This book club is modeled after the Catholic Book-a-Month Club established by the Sheed & Ward London house seven years ago. Sheed & Ward point out that this book club differs from the ordinary book club in two respects: all the books offered are the books of one publisher and the names of the selected books are announced in advance. Eight out of the ten books which will be distributed during the first year have been listed in a leaflet which is being sent to prospective subscribers. Among the authors are G. K. Chesterton, Alfred Noyes, Christopher Dawson and Arnold Lunn.

Sheed & Ward have written a letter to the booksellers in which they explain the workings of the Club and offer a discount of 20% on every subscription the bookseller obtains. They point out that the publishers are not using the club to make Sheed & Ward into booksellers but as a means of creating a public for the Sheed & Ward Catholic books. In England it has been found that the books chosen by the Catholic Book-a-Month Club have had an increased bookstore sale.

THE NEW LITERARY AGENCY of Page Cooper and Foster Gilman is now established with an office at 9 West Tenth Street. Miss Cooper, who has been identified with Doubleday's for sixteen years as director of publicity and a reader of manuscripts, has taken as her partner Dorothy Foster Gilman, formerly assistant to the literary editor of the Boston Transcript. Miss Gilman was in charge of a book column in that paper for several years in addition to publishing three novels and many reviews and literary articles. They are agents for Baroness Katharine Dombrowski, author of "Land of Women" and report that it will be published in Holland, Denmark, Sweden and Germany and the Svenska Dagbladet will issue it serially.

"Headline Books" to Be Issued

AS AN EXPERIMENT in presenting difficult international problems of our times in a simple and interesting form, the Foreign Policy Association is releasing on September 23rd the first of a new series of publications, Headline Books. The first title "War Tomorrow: Will We Keep Out?" tells in simple text and understandable diagrams of the various forces that bring about war and relates them to the current scene. These books will sell for 35 cents apiece and will be on sale in bookstores. They will also be distributed through various national organizations, study groups and schools interested in world affairs. They are designed for readers who have little background or training. Five other titles are projected: "Dictatorship," "Made in U.S.A.," "Peace and Party Platform," "Clash in the Pacific," and "Flags and Drums."

Book Union Makes First Choice

THE FIRST MONTHLY SELECTION of the Book Union, a newly organized left-wing book club which was described in the Publishers' Weekly for April 13, 1935, will be "Proletarian Literature in the United States," a comprehensive anthology of left-wing writing. The book will be published October 7th by International Publishers. The contents of the book include short stories, selections from novels, poems, plays, essays, sketches, reports, critical articles and reviews by more than 60 writers. Granville Hicks, Isidor Schneider, Michael Gold, Joseph North, Paul Peters, Joseph Freeman and Alan Calmer are the editors. Membership in the Book Union costs $1 a year. Full details may be secured from Marian Klopfer, 381 Fourth Ave., N. Y.

More Printing Courses

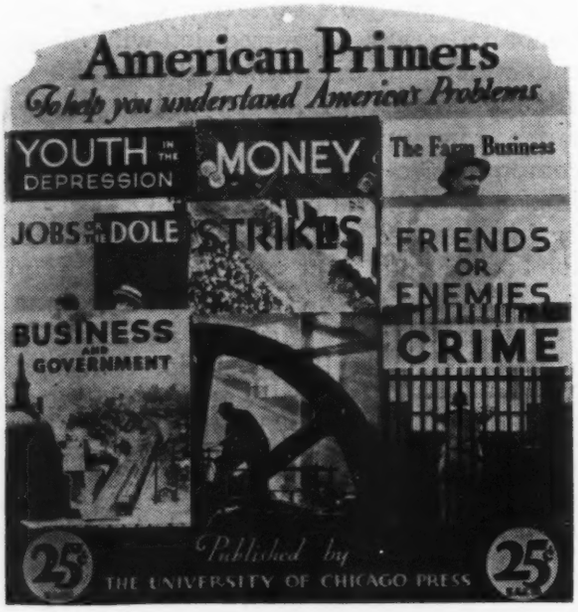
THREE COURSES on the Graphic Arts, given by Wilder Bentley, former student at the Laboratory Press of the Carnegie Institute of Technology and more recently sales manager of the University of California Press are being offered this fall by the Extension Division of the University of California. The courses began the week of September 16th and include The Art of the Book, Fine Printing, and Theoretical Typography. Mr. Bentley is now master of the Archetype Press which issued Robin Lampson's "Terza-rima Sonnets" last July.

U. of Chicago to Promote New Pamphlet Series

An appropriation of $2500—perhaps the largest ever made for the promotion of pamphlets—has been made by the University of Chicago Press to advertise its series of nine American Primers to be published October 1st. The promotion campaign will be directed at both the man-in-the-street and the educational field, and will include bookstore promotion and dealers' helps, space advertising, and direct mail.

The pamphlets have striking photographic covers on heavy glazed stock, illustrating their various titles, such as "Crime," "Strikes," "Jobs or the Dole," etc. They are large size (6 x 9), approximately 46 pages each, and contain numerous drawings by Fred G. Cooper, for many years art editor of Life.

A display rack printed in orange and



This display rack, printed in orange and black is being furnished with orders for 50 or more of the pamphlets black, made of substantial cardboard, is being furnished dealers free with orders of 50 pamphlets or more, and Press salesmen now on the road report excellent advance orders.

Space advertising includes advertisements in magazines of general circulation such as the Nation, the New Republic, the Survey Graphic, and the Christian Century; and test ads in newspapers of Chicago, and one or more other cities, to appeal to the general reader. Advertising to the educational world will include space in the Journal of the National Education Association, the School Review, Elementary School Journal, Character, and the Journal of Adult Education.

An elaborate four-page circular, 8 x 11, printed in two colors, is being mailed to about 25,000 school superintendents, principals, and other educators.

This series of pamphlets was prepared under a grant from the General Education Board to the American Council on Education, and to the University of Chicago Press. Dr. Percy W. Bidwell, Professor of Economics at the University of Buffalo, is the editor of the series, and its authors include educators, writers, and men prominent in public affairs. It is intended to meet the need for simple, readable, and authentic information and discussion of current issues in economics, politics, and sociology, especially among the young people of America, who, in the words of the author of "Youth in the Depression," "have not lost faith in their own ability to work out a better future within the framework of the government and the business system which they have inherited."

The complete American Primers series includes: "Youth in the Depression," by Kingsley Davis; "Strikes," by Joseph J. Senturia; "Friends or Enemies" (Foreign Relations), by Julius W. Pratt; "Money," by Marc Rose and Roman L. Horne; "Crime," by Nathaniel Cantor; "Jobs or the Dole?" by Neal B. DeNood; "Business and Government," by J. C. Crighton and J. J. Senturia; "The Farm Business," by Roman L. Horne, and "You and Machines," by William F. Ogburn.

University of Chicago Press is giving more complete coverage to the trade this year than usual. In addition to its regular salesmen, now on the road with its complete fall list, arrangements have been made with the Melrich Rosenberg organization of New York, which adds six salesmen in many sections of the South and West. The American Primers and the new Popular Edition of the complete Smith-Goodspeed "The Bible: An American Translation" are its big trade items.

News from Publishers

FURTHER indications of a good fall to corroborate the opinions of travelers given on page 983 of this issue come from the American Booksellers Association where, Bob Coles tells us, the A. B. A. Clearing House had the biggest month of its existence during August.

The entire first edition of "Mark Twain's Notebook" scheduled for publication by Harper's on October 10th has been subscribed to by booksellers, and no more orders for the first edition are being accepted by the publisher.

Macmillan reports that there were two large printings before publication of "Brothers Three" by John Oskison. This is to be one of Macmillan's big fall books. There's a large and elaborate poster available in limited quantities to those booksellers who do not already have it.

Ruth Norden, formerly head of the Foreign Department at S. Füsher Verlag, Berlin, and secretary to the producer, Max Reinhardt, has joined the staff of The Living Age.

Frederick Wight, author of "South," which was published by Farrar & Rinehart on September 9th, will have an exhibition of his paintings at the Kleeman Galleries in New York City from the 1st to the 15th of October.

Stanley Walker, whose new book "Mrs. Astor's Horse" will be published by Stokes on October 28th, is now on the editorial staff of The New Yorker. He is the author of "City Editor" also published by Stokes, was for some years city editor of the Herald Tribune, but resigned last December to become managing editor of the New York Mirror.

Macmillan will publish in October the book on Stalin which Henri Barbusse completed just before his fatal illness.

Appleton-Century has signed a contract for the publication early in 1936 of the authorized life of William Randolph Hearst. The book has been written by Cora Older, widow of Fremont Older. The title of the book is "William Randolph Hearst: Journalist."

Clarence Day was considerably surprised the other day when a letter arrived in the Knopf offices addressed to "Mr. Alfred A. Knopf, c/o the Clarence Day Publishing Co., New York City." The letter, incidentally, was from a college in North Carolina requesting complimentary copies of Mr. Day's "Life with Father." The request was politely declined.

Putnam's reports that since the death of Will Rogers, 2,000 copies have been sold of "Ether and Me." Now a memorial edition of the book is planned. It will be priced at $1.25. Putnam's has also imported sheets of "Abyssinia on the Eve" by Ladislas Farago, feature writer of the Associated Press, which has been one of England's best selling titles recently. The book contains 61 pages of photographs and will sell for $3.50.

There are some changes in publication date from Putnam's, too. "Poor John Fitch" by Thomas Boyd has been postponed from August 22nd to September 26th; "From the Kingdom of Necessity" by Isadore Schneider has been postponed from September 19th to October 15th, and "Your Mexican Kitchen" by Natalie Vivian Scott has been postponed from September 19th to October 4th.

Random House will publish in October a limited signed edition of "Porgy" a new American opera by George Gershwin, with libretto by Dubose Heyward and lyrics by Ira Gershwin and Dubose Heyward. "Porgy" will be produced by the Theatre Guild in October under the direction of Rouben Mamoulian, and the Random House edition, which contains the complete score and libretto, will be published on the same day. The book is more than 500 pages in length and will have a frontispiece and title page in color by George Biddle. Each copy will be signed by George Gershwin, Dubose Heyward, Ira Gershwin and Rouben Mamoulian. There will be 250 copies, boxed, at $25 each.

Michael S. Mill has concluded arrangements with Suttonhouse, Pacific Coast publishers of children's books, to act as their Eastern representative. His arrangements cover all territory east of Denver and Edward J. Flynn will travel the principal cities in the Middle West, Southwest, Northwest and Central New York. Stock will be carried at the A.B.A. warehouse, and all orders from the above territory will be shipped and billed from New York City.

On September 20th Scribner published "We Who Are About to Die," an account of his prison experiences written by David Lamson, former sales manager of the Stanford University Press, who was charged with the murder of his wife two years ago. He was found guilty and sentenced to death, but the Supreme Court reversed the decision, and at a second trial the jury disagreed. A third trial will shortly be held. The complete text of the Supreme Court decision, which casts extreme doubt on Mr. Lamson's guilt, is included in the book.

J. C. Furnas, author of the sensational article on automobile accidents which appeared in the August number of Reader's Digest, is also the author of "The Prophet's Chamber" which Morrow will publish October 2nd. Reader's Digest has had requests for more than a million reprints of the article.

Ernest Eisele presents Isabella Burrow with a diploma from the Börsenverein der Deutschen Büchhandler on the 40th anniversary of her joining the staff of Westermann's (see p. 1006)

The address of the Cassowary Press has been changed from 433 West 21st Street, New York City, to Box 282, Stirling, N. J.

Little, Brown, has announced a number of changes in publication dates. "Joan of Arc" by Milton Waldman has been postponed from September 20th to October 4th and the price has been increased from $3 to $3.50. "Notes as Vice President" by Charles G. Dawes has been postponed from October 4th to October 18th, "The Lees of Virginia" by Burton J. Hendrick has been postponed from October 4th to October 7th.

"This Trade of Writing" by Edward Weeks has been postponed from October 4th to October 18th. "Revolution and Freemasonry: 1680-1800" by Bernard Fay has been postponed from October 18th to November 8th. "The Romantic Rebels" by Frances Winwar has been postponed from October 18th to November 8th and the price has been increased from $3.50 to $3.75. "From a Surgeon's Journal: 1915-1918" by Dr. Harvey Cushing has been postponed from November 8th to November 22nd and the price has been increased from $3.50 to $4. "Old Jules" by Mari Sandoz, the Atlantic non-fiction prize book, has been postponed from October 14th to October 31st. "New World Picture" by George W. Gray has been postponed from November 8th to January 24th, 1936, and "Father Struck It Rich" by Evalyn Walsh McLean has been postponed from October 18th to some time in 1936.

Several new titles have also been added to the Little, Brown list since the fall catalog was published. They are "Full House" by M. J. Farrell, October 18th, $2.50; "The Eunuch of Stamboul," by Dennis Wheatley, November 8th, $2, and "The Virgin of Skalholt" by Gudmundur Kamban, November 22nd, $2.50, all fiction titles, and "Governments and Money" by Edward Jerome, November 22nd, $2.50; "Modern Menus and Recipes" by Lucy G. Allen, November 22nd, $2.50; "Congress, the Constitution and the Supreme Court," by Charles Warren, new revised edition, November 8th, $3.50, and "Measuring Ethiopia" by Carleton S. Coon, October 4th, $2.50, all non-fiction.

Publication dates of two of the titles on the new Lee Furman list have been postponed. Grace Lumpkin's "A Sign for Cain" will now appear October 14th and "The Street I Know," by Harold E. Stearns will be out October 16th.

Paul H. Douglas, professor of economics at the University of Chicago, turned over the manuscript of "Social Security in the United States" to Whittlesey House before sailing for Europe last Tuesday. The book is an analysis of the Federal Social Security Act.

Himebaugh & Browne Shop in Bar Harbor

Bookshop Notes

ONE OF THE LANDMARKS of Bar Harbor, Maine, is the Himebaugh & Browne Book Shop which was established there 32 years ago. When the shop first came to Bar Harbor it was welcomed by Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, author of "Hugh Wynne," Dr. Henry Van Dyck, Dr. Eliot of Harvard and many other book lovers. Through years many new friends have come to know and love the quaint little shop with its restful atmosphere.

D. B. Browne the proprietor says that in those early days Bar Harbor had no motor cars, no radios and few telephones. It was delightfully tranquil and long conversations were held with James Bryce and other notables who came to the shop. "Books were then taken seriously and much discussed," Mr. Browne says. "Alas, today Bar Harbor swarms with tourists and the old intimacies are gone, but the 'cottagers' still read books."

Don Blanding is caught by the candid camera at the opening of Betty and James Hakes' Westwood Book Store in Los Angeles

The customers today read detective stories galore, and certain novels capture their fancy. One customer bought a dozen "Map of Days" for her friends. "God's Pocket" by Rachel Field, a story of the Cranberry Isles off Mt. Desert, still evokes enthusiasm as does her last book, "Time Out of Mind." "Lucy Gayheart," "Don Fernando," "Away to the Gaspé," "The Silver Horn" and "National Velvet" have been among the season's more popular titles there. The fact that Mary Roberts Rinehart has been spending the summer there has created a demand for her older titles. Cook books have also been popular. Current book sales, Mr. Browne reports, are nearly double those of last year, but expensive items have fallen off. There is a continuous demand for books on yachting, racing, gardens, history, biography and poetry.

Hundreds of persons attended the formal opening on August 26th of the Westwood Book Store, a trade bookstore and rental library near the University of California at Los Angeles. Betty and James Hakes, proprietors of the store, made extensive preparations for the opening, inviting a number of authors to be present and autograph their books and taking an entire page in the Westwood Hills Press to announce the opening. Lewis Browne, Don Blanding, Paul Jordan Smith, Lee Shippey, Edwin Corle, George J. Cox and John Caughey were among the authors present. It was the first time Lewis Browne had ever consented to autograph his books publicly in a store.

Besides serving the University, the Westwood Book Store caters to a large community including Beverly Hills and Santa Monica. Betty Hakes, who is Mrs. James Hakes, had experience in book stores while attending the University of Wisconsin and for the past three years has developed the trade book department of Campbell's Book Store, a large college store in Los Angeles. Mr. Hakes was manager of Campbell's for the past three years. He has been associated with the retail book business for nine years. The store carries a complete selection of regular stock items as well as a good selection of all current books. In the children's book department the store works with the University training school and other progressive schools. The rental library cooperates with several book study groups.

One day last week the staff of B. Westermann & Co. of New York celebrated the 40th Anniversary of Isabella Burrow as a member of the selling force of the store, ten years with Westermann, and thirty years with its predecessors, Lemcke and Buckner. On this occasion, Ernest Eisele, head of the firm and President of the German Booksellers of America, presented Miss Burrow with a silver medal and a diploma from the Börsenverein der Deutschen Büchhandler. These have never before been given to an American. Mr. Eisele made a little speech expressing his personal sense of gratitude to Miss Burrow for her years of faithful service, for the example she had set the whole staff, by all of whom she was beloved.

In connection with the commemoration of the four hundredth anniversary of the first printing of the Bible in English, Brentano's are putting on, in their New York store, an historical exhibition of famous Bibles printed at the Cambridge University Press. The exhibition will begin on October 4th and will run for two weeks. Included will be a copy of the first Cambridge edition of the Authorised Version, printed in 1629, a copy of the beautiful Baskerville Bible and a set of the first edition of the Revised Version of the Bible. This exhibition has been arranged in collaboration with the Macmillan Company.

Closed Shops

Madison, Wis.—The Hawthorn Book Shop, which discontinued business about three years ago and afterward reopened, has again closed.

Madison, Wis.—W. S. Gatewood, who for eleven years has had a college textbook and student supply store in Madison, operated as a branch of the Texas Bookstore, of Austin, Texas, has discontinued the branch and will return to Texas. The store fixtures and a large part of the stock was purchased by Brown's Book Shop of Madison.

Enlarged Shop

Madison, Wis.—Brown's Book Shop has taken over a store room adjoining their present quarters and will have a considerably larger and improved shop when alterations are completed.

Catalogs Requested

Milan, Italy—Dr. Leoni Pietro, Via Lodovici Muratore, requests catalogs of all publishers for use in instituting a modern library in foreign languages.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Mrs. Ada A. Keegan, who takes book orders and operates a small magazine subscription business from her home, 5521 Miriam Road, is interested in receiving publishers' catalogs.

Kalispell, Mont.—Mrs. J. B. McCarthy, owner of Blue Lantern circulating library, desires announcements of new books.

Obituaries

SILAS K. HOCKING

Silas K. Hocking, British novelist, died at his home in London on September 15th at the age of 85. Early in the century he was one of the most popular of novelists writing in England. He averaged 1,000 copies a week in the British Isles for more than forty years, bringing the total number of his books in the hands of the public to more than 2,000,000. By 1927 he had published fifty novels. One of his best sellers, "The Mystery Man," was written in 1930; his last novel, "Gerry Storm," was published last year. Mr. Hocking was ordained a Methodist Minister in 1870. He began to write in 1878 and his books proved so successful that he gave up the ministry to devote himself to writing. His books which are still in print in the United States include "Dick's Fairy," "Real Grit," "In Spirit of Fate," "The Awakening of Anthony Weir," "A Modern Pharisee" and "Watchers in the Dawn."

THE WORLD FROM BELOW, by Jules Romains. Knopf, $3.
The fourth American volume of "Men of Good Will." Have you seen the author's letter to his American readers, sent out by Knopf?

Some Best Sellers of the Week

HONEY IN THE HORN, by H. L. Davis. Harper, $2.50.

Out just a month, the Harper Prize Novel takes the lead in fiction. It's the best seller in Chicago according to the Daily News and in San Francisco according to the Times. Listed by every city reporting to the Times.

VEIN OF IRON, by Ellen Glasgow. Harcourt, Brace, $2.50.

This and "Honey in the Horn" were the only two novels listed by every city in the Times. Now selling in its 85th thousand.

LUCY GAYHEART, by Willa Cather. Knopf, $2.

The most recent fiction leader still holds first place in Boston and on the Herald Tribune list of best sellers.

GREEN LIGHT, by Lloyd C. Douglas. Houghton Mifflin, $2.50.

The oldest novel among best sellers is selling steadily and strongly. Leader in St. Louis stores, second in Boston and Atlanta. The sixth printing brings its total to 85,000.

THE INQUISITOR, by Hugh Walpole. Doubleday, Doran, $3.

Outsold all other fiction in Atlanta, second in Chicago and St. Louis, reports the Times.

NORTH TO THE ORIENT, by Anne Morrow Lindbergh. Harcourt, Brace, $2.50.

The non-fiction best seller at the American News and also reported in first place by N. Y., Boston, Washington, Chicago, New Orleans and San Francisco stores to the Times. Its fourth printing brings the total to 80,000.

MARY QUEEN OF SCOTLAND AND THE ISLES, by Stefan Zweig. Viking Press, $3.50.

The newest best seller in non-fiction is an extremely close contender. Viking tells us that it had sold more copies at the end of two weeks than "Marie Antoinette" had sold at the end of two months, exclusive of book club sales.

LIFE WITH FATHER, by Clarence Day. Knopf, $2.

Selling well everywhere. In its 68th thousand, Knopf tells us. Second on the Tribune list.

ASYLUM, by William Seabrook. Harcourt, Brace, $2.

Listed in the Times by N. Y., Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Chicago and New Orleans stores. Fourth printing.

PERSONAL HISTORY, by Vincent Sheean. Doubleday, Doran, $3.

The oldest non-fiction best seller is still going strong.

Candidates for the Best Seller List

EUROPA, by Robert Briffault. Scribner, $2.75.

The current fiction sensation. Sold second only to "Vein of Iron" at Brentano's, N. Y., where they are particularly enthusiastic about it. Two printings before publication.

THE VOICE OF BUGLE ANN, by MacKinlay Kantor. Coward-McCann, $1.25.

Living up to expectations, this unique little story bids fair to become another "Mr. Chips." Fifth printing, and sold for photoplay production to M-G-M.

THE BEACHCOMBER, by William McFee. Doubleday, Doran, $2.50.

Listed in the Times by N. Y., Philadelphia and Chicago stores.

THE BATTLE OF BASINGHALL STREET, by E. Phillips Oppenheim. Little, Brown, $2.

First reports of good sales from Boston and Philadelphia stores.

THE WEDGE, by Herman Deutsch. Stokes, $2.50.

This novel of Mexico is a leading fiction title in New Orleans. Stern's, N. Y., is displaying it.

KING LEHR AND THE GILDED AGE, by Elizabeth Drexel Lehr. Lippincott, $3.

Fourth on the latest American News list, and reported in the Times by N. Y., Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and San Francisco stores.

CATHERINE DE MEDICI, by Francis Watson. Appleton-Century, $3.

A good volume to sell your biography customers with Zweig's "Mary." Brentano's, N. Y., lists it among the six best sellers of the past week.

OLD & RARE BOOKS

A WEEKLY DEPARTMENT

The London Auction Season

"The Times" Reports It to Have Been "Dull," Without an "Outstanding Library," and "Few Outstanding Books"

FREDERICK M. HOPKINS

THE LONDON AUCTION SEASON lasts from two months to ten weeks longer than that in this country. The London Times Literary Supplement, in its department "Notes on Sales" reviews the English auction season just closed, and says:

"The last few weeks of the auction season, just ended, reflected fairly accurately the whole year. It has not been a bad year but a dull one. Prices as a whole are up on the previous two or three years, but there still remains an apparent unwillingness to put the better books into the market. There has been no outstanding library, and few outstanding books, sold in London this year, though one or two of the American sales reported in this column were on that score more encouraging, but New York seems to be a much less reliable place than London; and one regrets—not patriotically merely, but for the general good of the book-trade everywhere—that more of the American libraries were not sold here. London has always attracted American vendors, and still does, though naturally less in the last year or two; but there has been a noticeable return of American purchasers to Sotheby's, and, the book market being in a fairly topsy-turvey condition, we may perhaps take the gathering of the vultures as prophetic of fat carcasses to come."

The Report Analyzed

"It has not been a bad year but a dull one . . . there still remains an apparent unwillingness to put the better books into the market . . . There has been no outstanding library, and few outstanding books, sold in London this year . . . one or two of the American sales reported in this column were on that score more encouraging . . . New York seems to be a much less reliable place than London . . . one regrets—not patriotically merely, but for the general good of the book-trade everywhere—that more of the American libraries were not sold here . . . the book market being in a fairly topsy-turvey condition, we may perhaps take the gathering of the vultures as prophetic of fat carcasses to come." These are the words of The Times.

It is apparent that the "dullness" of the London market is due to a lack of confidence. Nothing else could have created an "unwillingness" on the part of consignors to sell. Well, what was the condition in New York during this same period? In the season ending a year ago, the leading auction house in New York, comparable to Sotheby's in London, nearly doubled its volume of book sales. Last season, ending in May, the same house made a gain of 30 per cent. The Times admits that conditions in New York were more encouraging, but its admissions gave no adequate idea of the full truth.

The "dullness" in London and the activity in New York, has been well known in England, even though The Times did not give the information. One of the consignments that came from England last year consisted of twenty-two letters written by Robert Browning and Elizabeth Barrett Browning, which brought $40,000. We never have heard of an English dealer, auctioneer or newspaper that was of the opinion that these letters would have brought more in London. In this case New York was not so "unreliable" as The Times would like to believe it to be. And here is another sale that The Times knows all about. An American collector who had gathered a notable collection of first editions of English authors was persuaded to sell them in "reliable" London. His books were poorly cataloged. The sale was a failure. Experts say that they would have brought more than twice as much in New York. There is a reason why many consignments from England are coming to New York, and why so few go to London from America. It is not because the Englishmen are lacking in patriotism, and it is not because Americans are mad with it. Both have one common purpose, to get the most money for their rarities. And this is good reason enough to influence any sensible consignor, English or American.

The English "knock-out" is fully recorded in bibliographical history. Until within the memory of living men, London book sales were held for the "general good of the book trade" and the interests of the consignor were disregarded or overlooked. When The Times "regrets" that "more American libraries" were not sold in London it takes the old English point of view, "the good of the book-trade," and ignores the consignor, the party most interested. The American auction system is founded upon the practice of fair competition—a reasonable price for the man who sells and a reasonable price for the buyer. The collector can safely buy in such a market, and he, or his heirs, can safely sell in it.

Three factors are working overtime to make New York the great book market of the world: (1) the American auction system the fairest and most efficient to be found anywhere; (2) the support of the largest number of enthusiastic, determined, intelligent and resourceful collectors ever possessed by any nation; (3) a constant demand for rarities of every description—the most diversified demand in the world. These three factors, in the last two years, have made the New York market active, while that of London has been comparatively "dull." These factors, acting like a magnet, are attracting consignments, more and more, from other nations.

We would like to overlook the use of the word "vultures." Its application to American collectors and dealers is not in good taste. It should never have been printed in The London Times. We have bought too many books from London, and have too many friends among English booksellers, to take the offensive word too seriously. But, nevertheless, it should not have been used, and we have the feeling that The Times will see that it is not used again.

If the London book market is in a "topsy-turvey" condition it is just too bad. But American buyers should not be blamed. And old cordial relations should not be affected. Our friends across the seas should remember that we began buying books in London a long time ago, when we were a poor people and few in numbers. A large portion of our population were struggling frontiersmen. Now our nation extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and has several times the population of the British Isles, and we have more money than we sometimes think is good for us. We have been a good customer all these years. We have bought largely at times when the English book-trade needed the money. Great changes have taken place in the last half century, and doubtless greater changes are coming.

Long before another half century has passed, English collectors and dealers will have become accustomed to coming to New York to buy books much as they have been in going to London. We believe that they will be cordially welcomed. We feel sure that they will like the American way of doing business. And we are confident that they will enjoy their annual trips. Perhaps Bernard Quaritch, Ltd., and Maggs Brothers will have New York bookshops doing more business than the old shops in London. After all, to use the words of The Times, this may be "for the general good of the book-trade everywhere." "Coming events cast their shadows before." The passing of London and the rise of New York as the center of the rare book trade of the world is foreshadowed in The Times's report of the last auction season in London.

A New Bibliographical Series

JOHN CARTER

PROOF-READING IN THE SIXTEENTH, SEVENTEENTH AND EIGHTEENTH CENTURIES, by Percy Simpson. Oxford University Press. Quarto. Pp. xii + 252, with sixteen plates and four facsimiles.

MR. SIMPSON'S TREATISE is the first volume of a new series known as the "Oxford Books on Bibliography." The quality of this series was vouched for in advance when the names of the general editors were announced—Graham Pollard, John Johnson, Stanley Morison, Strickland Gibson, Theodore Besterman—and the acknowledgments in Mr. Simpson's preface show how generously the editorial function is being interpreted.

The general purpose of the series can be indicated by the following quotation. "Bibliography as a science," runs the editorial manifesto, "is of recent growth, and many of its fundamental tasks have yet to be fully carried out. Material describing the procedure of printer and bookseller has yet to be collected and compared. Typographical designs have still to be classified before they can be used to date or identify printed matter. The history of papermaking has been receiving attention, but the subject of the importation and marketing of paper is practically unexplored. And there is no account of post-medieval handwriting. The field is wide, and only isolated portions have so far been touched; but all such studies are relevant to the immediate needs of literary and historical research.

"The object, then, of the present series is to publish studies in the past practice of all occupations which affect the making and distribution of books. It will not include lists of the works of individual authors or on particular subjects; and, conscious that the analytical investigation of books is encouraged elsewhere, this series will be confined to studies in the material upon which such work must ultimately rest."

The six volumes announced make an impressive and formidable array, and it is clear from the volume now under review that the bibliographical world may look forward to some notable additions to the shelf reserved for really scholarly reference books.

Mr. Simpson's book is, in brief, an attempt to determine how far, at any particular time during the three centuries he covers, an author's intentions, as regards orthography, punctuation and even grammar, were reproduced on the printed page: and to say that this study will be fundamental to the work of every editor and critic of a printed text is, if anything, an understatement of its potential importance.

Isolated aspects of the problem have been discussed, in papers contributed to the transactions of the Bibliographical Societies of England and America; Mr. Simpson himself made a preliminary general attack eight years ago; and conscientious editors at one time and another have investigated the conditions under which their particular authors were originally published. But it is almost shocking to realize that no general work on the subject has hitherto appeared. How revolutionary is the effect on the editing of a printed text of a close study of the preparation of the "copy" and its passage through the printing house, was abundantly demonstrated by Professor J. Dover Wilson in his book on "The Manuscript of Shakespeare's Hamlet and the Problem of its Transmission" (Cambridge University Press, 1934)—the most fascinating literary detective story since Dr. Gregg's discovery of the misdated Jaggard Quartos. And just as that book left the reader wondering how previous editors could have salved their consciences when their attitude to a crucial part of their function remained so indifferent; so now Mr. Simpson's researches will not only bring a slight blush to the cheek of many an editor of a seventeenth or eighteenth century text (et ego in Arcadia), but they indicate with admirable fullness the extent of this newly realized province and provide an equally admirable weapon for its conquest by the editors of the future.

It has been a frequent reproach cast at some products of what is called the "new" bibliography that it has lost touch with both literature and life; that it has become an end rather than a means, and is no more than "bombinating in a vacuum." Such books as this conclusively contradict the charge, and bibliography in Mr. Simpson's hands is the more impressive for being essentially the handmaid of textual criticism and so of literature itself.

"Proof-Reading" is divided into four chapters. The first deals with the external evidence for the practice of authors reading their own proof sheets. The earliest example quoted dates from 1529, and in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries the author more often than not "attended the press" in person, whereas the usual method of the eighteenth anticipated that of today. Some authors, like Milton and Pope, were meticulously careful, even fussy, as befitted precise stylists; others like Sir Thomas Browne, who lived far from the printer, seem to have been indifferent, and it was probably this indifference as much as "the bad Spelling, and Pointing of his Copy," of which Moxon speaks, which forced on the compositor and his employer the evolution of what we now call "the custom of the house" in orthography. Both abbreviations and alternative spellings were often used by the compositor for the sole purpose of easing his task of even spacing, and though very little evidence seems to be available on this point, it looks as if capitalizing and italicizing were also often more subject to the whim of the compositor than representative of the author's nicety.

These and many other points are more clearly illustrated in the second chapter, when Mr. Simpson proceeds to deal with internal, direct evidence—surviving examples of author's and printer's proof, and of press "copy." Material of this kind is in its very nature rarely preserved, and the number of examples here discussed will be an agreeable surprise to anyone who has had occasion to search for such on his own account. From the printer's "copy" for Harington's "Ariosto" and a piece of proof from Wynkyn de Worde in 1492, onwards, these two vital stages in the process of printing are examined in the light of a wealth of evidence "remarkable" as Mr. Simpson himself observes, "for its variety and range."

The two final chapters are devoted to The Corrector of the Press, on whom perhaps more than anyone else depended the accurate transmission of the author's intentions to the printed page. The normal qualifications and activities of the "ordinary" corrector are of much greater significance for general literature than those of the "learned" corrector; but since the former was a member of the printing house staff, often in small establishments the master printer himself, there is much less information available than in the case of the "learned" corrector, who was brought in from outside, usually for some particular job, and whose payment figures accordingly in any printer's records. The traditional omniscience of the corrector —I recall a case where the proofreader, through two revises, would not allow me to quote Horace correctly because an unusual construction horrified his correcter taste—was early established. Moxon in 1683 writes: "A Corrector should (besides the English Tongue) be well skilled in Languages, especially in those that are used to be Printed with us, viz. the Latin, Greek, Hebrew, Syriack, Caldæ, French, Spanish, Italian, High Dutch, Saxon, Low Dutch, Welch, &c., . . He ought to be very knowing in Derivations and Etymologies of Words, very sagacious in Pointing, skilful in the Compositers whole Task and Obligation, and endowed with a quick Eye to espy the smallest Fault." Thus was the poor author helped over his stiles and put in his place.

Mr. Simpson's learning has multiplied his examples and documented his points with a thoroughness which sometimes obscures the main thread of his argument, and his book is no easy reading. But he is rightly cautious of theorizing, and as a collection of material, judiciously arranged, his work is invaluable. At this stage, as Dwight Fiske's General observed, in a somewhat different context, "ammunition is more important than strategy"; but for a book so packed with matter a much fuller index should have been provided. Curious, for instance, to learn when the underlining of a word to indicate italics was first introduced, I looked at once to the index. Neither underlining nor italic is given, and in fact the index does not go beyond names and titles. The book is very well produced as to text and collotypes, but the binding, of paper boards and cloth back, though elegant, is unpractical for a work of reference.

These, however, are small blemishes in a volume which is admirable in itself and a very happy augury for the series which it introduces. Mr. Simpson has the republics of bibliography and of letters in his debt.

The Amazing Sir Oliver Lodge

Reviewed by PHILIP C. BLACKBURN

A Bibliography of Sir Oliver Lodge, F.R.S. Compiled by Theodore Besterman With a Foreword by Sir Oliver Lodge and a Portrait. Oxford University Press. 1935. $7.00.

BIBLIOGRAPHIES OF SCIENTISTS are usually rather dull reading except to their fellow-scientists; collectors of first editions are seldom interested in savants. It is a pleasure therefore to record the appearance of this bibliography, which is not at all dull, and which brings into one volume the voluminous writings of a man in whom there seems to be some collecting interest arising.

This is a definitive rather than a first edition bibliography. There are no line-transcriptions nor "points" listed; full titles, pages, and in the case of books and pamphlets, size, are listed chronologically. Wherever possible the month is also added—a piece of research which is always worthwhile —and extremely difficult. In addition to every known Lodge item, including translations, there is a selection of writings about Lodge.

Lodge's appearances in print began in 1875. To date there have been some 1,156 titles recorded; the entries in the main section of the bibliography are numbered as a series. (The discrepancy between the total, 1,156, and the last number, 1,154, is accounted for by two doubled numbers.) In the preface to the book a table gives a classification of the writings, under nine headings. This table, with its annual and subject totals provides a brief panorama of the amazing scientific and literary activity of Sir Oliver Lodge.

I am impressed by the fecundity of Lodge's interests and the frequency of his appearance in print. In his foreword to the book, he speaks of various experiments of his which were later developed into scientific achievements of world-wide importance. (This last estimate is mine, not his.) Those who are interested in his activities in Spiritism, Survival, and Psychic Research will be amazed to discover that of the 1,156 entries, some 143 concern themselves with these subjects; and those who have damned all his science because of his psychic interests will be disgruntled to learn that these writings formed only a small part of a long and fruitful career.

Those who find themselves becoming interested in Sir Oliver Lodge as a collector's man have set before them a thorough guide, and a list of items some of which are probably unobtainable. Pamphlets, particularly those of the early career of a great man, are notoriously fugitive; indeed, the compiler states that some of the items seem to have survived as galley-proofs only. Naturally there cannot be many. If the prophecy of some people be the result of a genuine inspiration, Lodge is due to become a much greater man than he is at present regarded; that means of course that some people will "collect" him. It would seem the part of prudence, if such be their intentions, to begin at once.

Mr. Besterman has done a first-rate piece of work within his field. The book is far removed from those dreary and inaccurate lists produced by undergraduates at library school; if I had anything to do with it, I should make the study of this volume required reading for library school students of bibliography; it is almost an ideal standard of its kind. Where there are no "points" of issue involved, where there are no niceties of priority nor variations in text, and where line transcriptions are unnecessary, one must go far to find a better volume. My only quarrel is with the Index, which lists dates and series numbers, but which omits pages, making the location of a particular item more troublesome than it need be. Nor am I enthusiastic about using roman numerals for tabulation, particularly in a series so long as this; few people are facile in reducing roman dates to arabic, and would have trouble with a serial number so written. But these objections savor of carping in a book otherwise admirable. Comment appears frequently, indicating the history of the publication of the particular entry; there is no attempt at critical analysis or synopsis of the material.

Rare Book Notes

FREDERICK M. HOPKINS

One of the immediate problems that collectors and dealers have to contend with is the appraising of rare first editions of American authors in varying conditions. We are receiving frequent letters of inquiry of this sort, and they are difficult to answer. Some time ago we received a letter in reference to a series of quotations on the first edition of Mrs. Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Our correspondent wrote: "I have been trying to find a first edition of 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' that I could afford to buy. I have received four quotations: (1) for a 'very fine copy,' clean and unshaven, bright and crisp, as new, $200; (2) a 'much read copy, evidently well treated, binding sound, contents clean and unfoxed,' said to be 'a good copy,' $125; (3) 'badly shaken, one signature loose, covers loose, contents very clean, a good copy for rebinding,' $60; (4) 'a made-up copy, the two covers differing slightly, contents soiled, spotted title-page of Vol. I torn and defective,' $25." In glancing through the 1934 issue of the "American Book Prices Current" we find eleven copies of Hawthorne's "The Scarlet Letter," first edition, listed with prices ranging from $2,600, inscribed by the author, to $8, "corners worn, back-strips chipped." Eight copies of the first issue of the first edition of Longfellow's "Hiawatha," fetched from $70 to $8, the latter "back-strip repaired." Four copies of Whittier's "Snowbound," first issue of first edition, $230 to $42.50, the latter listed as "worn." Collectors that have the money are willing to pay a comparatively high price for "as new" or "very fine" copies of rare American first editions. When the fine copies are exhausted then the whole range of second, third and fourth rate copies will advance and cleaning, restoring and rebinding will begin. For instance, the first editions of the seven parts of Irving's "Sketch Book" "as new" would bring a very high price. There is no late record of such a sale. In 1933 a set of the seven parts, "name on several wrappers, corners frayed, several back-strips chipped, several covers loose," brought $1,600. "The Sketch Book" brought this price because a better copy was not procurable. When the same degree of rarity exists on other first editions in "as new" condition, then there will be a demand for inferior copies at higher prices, and this time is coming very rapidly. If one does not feel like paying $200 for a "very fine copy" of the first edition of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and has bought a clean copy with perfect text for $60 and paid $20 a volume for suitable rebinding, he would have a very fine copy for $100. Sooner or later, a fine, clean, perfect text, "unwashed," will be in demand and then the price will be very much higher. This is the time to buy such rare books now, when the price is a quarter or a tenth of what it will be later. And doubtless in the very season now near at hand, there will be many such opportunities.

Mrs. A. N. McDonald of East Orange, N. J., who has made a collection of 10,000 bookplates, arranged by countries, periods and artists, and including the work of such artists as J. W. Spenceley, Sidney L. Smith, E. D. French, W. F. Hopson and Timothy Cole. Formerly making a hobby of painting heraldic designs, she now tints many of her husband's bookplates with water colors. Public recognition of her fine work was accorded several years ago by the late John Cotton Dana, then librarian of the Newark Public Library. He then thought so highly of the colored bookplates she exhibited that he bought the entire collection for the institution. Mrs. McDonald says that she is at a loss to understand why bookplate collecting has not attained a wider following in this country. "It is a hobby that should interest everyone," she says, "who has fondness for fine art." There are opportunities for assembling a collection of bookplates through exchange, attendance at auction sales, and in the book and print shops of New York, Boston, and other large cities. If the rare book shops gave more attention to the hobby they would help a great deal in popularizing it.

THIS LIST aims to be a complete and accurate record of American book publication. Publishers should send copies of all books promptly for annotation and entry, and the receipt of advance copies insures record simultaneous with publication. The annotations are descriptive, not critical; intended to place, not to judge the books. Pamphlet material and books of lesser trade interest are listed in smaller type.

The entry is transcribed from the title-page when the book is sent for record. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request, in which case the word "apply" is used. When not specified the binding is "cloth."

Imprint date or copyright date is always stated, except when imprint date and copyright date agree and are of the current year, in which case only "c" is used. No ascertainable date is designated thus: [n. d.]

Sizes are indicated as follows: F (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q (4to: under 30 cm.); O (8vo: 25 cm.); D (12mo; 20 cm.); S (16mo; 17½ cm.); T (24mo; 15 cm.); sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow.

★ indicates a translation from a foreign language, a key used at the request of the International Institute of Intellectual Cooperation of the League of Nations.

The Weekly Book Exchange

How to use Books Wanted and Books For Sale

TERMS: "Books Wanted" and "Books for Sale," 15c. a line. No charge for address.

The first-named is for booksellers, publishers and libraries only; the second is open to individuals also.

Both departments are for subscribers' use only.

All other classifications 20c. a line. Bills rendered monthly.

Write plainly on one side of paper. The Weekly is not responsible for typographical errors. Illegible "wants" ignored. Each title must begin on a separate line except grouped titles by one author. Objectionable books excluded when noted. If books wanted were originally published in a foreign language, state whether original or translation is desired.

In answering state edition, condition and price including transportation.

Give your name and address.

Credit responsibility of advertisers is not guaranteed but space in the columns will be denied to dealers who misuse it. Pay for your purchases promptly to preserve credit standing. Copy closes Monday noon.

WILLIAM CHAPMAN RALSTON
COURAGEOUS BUILDER

By Cecil Gage Tilton, M.S., M.B.A.

"Capitalism in America is not done," says the author of this book, "real capitalists function as entrepreneurs. They form the foundations for permanent and progressive institutions. They will deny the nagging 'isms.' "

This is a story of the great California banker, whose enterprise created wealth out of production.

"The book is a valuable contribution both to the history of California and to the story of business development."—The New York Times.

"The book is vigorously written."—The San Francisco Examiner.

Cloth, 474 pages. From your bookstore, $4.00
